GREAT THRONG AT FUNERAL OF GEN. BRAYTON

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 26.—The funeral of General Charles E. Brayton was held in Grace Church here this afternoon and attended by many notable men. The church was thronged. Men from all parts of Rhode Island came especially to pay a last tribute of respect to the remarkable man who had been the active leader of the Republican party in this State for so many years. Members of the Brayton family sat in the four front pews, honorary pall bearers sat in two pews and six were reserved for members of the Third Rhode Island Heavy Artillery. This was General Brayton's command during the Civil War. There were pews for members of the Loyal Legion, the Prescott Post, G. A. R., and other members of the Grand Army of the Republic. Ten pews for members of the General Assembly were reserved on one of the side aisles.

Societies Send Delegates.

On the left, behind the bearers, were seated in three pews the members of King Solomon's Lodge of Masons, the lodge through which General Brayton entered that fraternity. Four pews seated members of Calvary Commandery; two were occupied by the Kentish Artillery. The Society of Colonial Wars occupied one pew, and two others State officials.

The members of the Republican State Central Committee occupied eight pews; behind the State officials on the left of the aisle. Other pews were for the delegations sent from the Republican City Committee of this city, members of the Providence Central Club and close friends of the gen eral.

The ushers were William H. Barclay of Pawtucket, John J. Rossnfeld, William C. Pelky, Harry Johnson of Washington, D. C., Richard W. Jennings of Cranston, Alfred G. Chaffee, Jame J. Nolan and George N. Kingsbury. The honorary bearers represented the eight societies with which General Brayton was associated, one being chosen from each society.

Sing Favorite Hymns.

The Episcopal burial service was conducted by Rev. Frank W. Crowder, rector of Grace Church. The choir sang two of General Brayton's favorite selections, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Following the Episcopal service Rev. Charles H. Ewer, department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, Rhode Island department, read a brief service in behalf of the G. A. R. He uttered a short eulogy.

General Brayton's body was taken to the church from the home of Mrs. Martin Bolden, No. 113 Vinton street, a sister-in-law. Family prayers were held at the home before the church ceremonies.

Burial will be at General Brayton's lot in Swan Point.

CENSUS BUREAU'S COTTON STATISTICS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The census bureau at 10 o'clock issued a statistical report showing the total supplies for the year ending August 31, 1910, to have been 13,905,958 running bales, made up as follows: Stocks at the beginning of the year, 1,483,383; ginnings, 11,350,075; imports, 151,395 bales. The exports were 6,359,028 bales exported, 4,539,127 consumed. Stocks at close of the year 939,843 bales, of which 518,101 held by manufacturers and 421,742 elsewhere. The active consuming spindles were 28,340,067, of which 26,826,829 were in cotton growing States and 17,522,938 in all other States.

CATHOLICS HOLD BIG CHARITY CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The National Conference of Catholic Charities was inaugurated here in the presence of high ecclesiastical dignitaries, including Cardinal Gibbons. Mgr. Falconio, apostolic delegate, archbishops and bishops and nearly 500 laymen and clergymen identified with the work of charity, Cardinal Gibbons, who is honorary president of the conference, was the central figure at a big public meeting. "We shall always have poverty to relieve," said he. "Poverty follows wealth just as the shadow follows the sun."

2 PATROLMEN SUSPENDED, ONE FOR SHOOTING

Sanford S. Lewis, who belongs to the license squad, and Michael J. Hannon, to the reserve force, of the Somerville police, were suspended by Chief Kendall to-day pending an investigation of the charge made by Sergeant John J. Cuney of the Cambridge police that they were intoxicated in the street last night, and that Lewis shot into a crowd and at Sergeant Cuney and Policeman O'Brien.

Chief Kendall began an investigation of the case at midnight and was still working on it at noon to-day. He said the facts would be laid before Mayor Woods of Somerville for action.

The trouble took place in that section of Somerville known as "Bricks Bottoms," which is something like a certain section of Chicago described in Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle." Lewis had a long commission to look for liquor violations. Hannon was going along for company. They were both in plain clothes.

Sergeant Takes a Hand.

Hannon heard a noise in a house where there was a Polish gathering and went in to investigate. When Lewis went in shortly afterwards to see what kept Hannon he found Hannon on the floor with five men and one woman on top of him.

The two officers were said to be intoxicated. They pulled themselves into the street pursued by a lot of the people they had interrupted. It was at this point that Sergeant Cuney entered the mixup. He tells what followed in an interview to-day with a reporter for the AMERICAN:

"I live on Harding street in East Cambridge. At the other end of the street is the Polish district of Somerville.

"I go on duty at Station 4 in Cambridge at 1 o'clock. I was up and about my house and partly dressed about 11 o'clock when I heard shots and yelling down at the end of the street in Somerville. I hastily put on some clothes and ran down to the scene of the trouble.

Fired Into Crowd.

"When I arrived at the point where the disturbance was in progress I saw Sandford H. Lewis and Michael Hannon, members of your department. They were brandishing their revolvers and threatening a big crowd which was on the street. Both men were clearly under the influence of liquor.

Fired Into Crowd.

"I saw that there might be trouble, for while the crowd did not seem unruly, the officers were plainly irresponsible for their actions. I saw three of my brother officers, John Walsh, Manuel Mello and John O'Brien of Cambridge Station 3. They had been attacked by the mobs and shooting and had rushed to the scene of the trouble.

"Then suddenly Lewis fired his revolver point blank into the crowd. I yelled at Lewis to stop and then O'Brien and I started to get hold of Lewis. We wanted to stop any bloodshed.

He saw us running at him. I was in plain clothes, but O'Brien was in his uniform. Lewis turned and ran a short distance, then turned and fired at us.

"He rushed into South street and we followed. But when we turned into South street he was nowhere to be found. I understand that he hid in a house on that street."

TAFT CONFERS ABOUT WEST POINT ARRESTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 26.—Major-General Richard H. Barry, commandant at West Point Military Academy, to-day consulted with President Taft on the arrest of the 500 cadets at the academy Sunday, following their administration of a "shiner" to Captain Rufus E. Longan, a medical officer. It is understood that it is impossible to court-martial the entire corps and that the cadets will be punished by having all privileges withdrawn for several months.

ROBBER CHASED BY CROWD

An exciting chase through the banking district this afternoon in which a pretty girl stenographer, a policeman and about 200 others participated, resulted in the capture of a young man who said he was John Sheehey of No. 64 Chadwick street, Roxbury.

The police charged the man with having stolen the girl's pocket book which contained $25 and $50 worth of stamps.

The robbery, it is charged, took place in room No. 6 of No. 54 Kilby street. A young woman was in charge of the room when Sheehey entered. The girl was in the telephone booth. She turned about just in time to see the intruder snatch the stamps and pocketbook and dart out.

The girl screamed for help and followed. She chased the man down two flights of steps and followed him into the street. The sight of a bareheaded girl sprinting after a young man in the business section of the city attracted a big crowd. Every few steps the young woman emitted a cry:

"Stop thief! Stop thief!"

Policeman W. G. Hill from station 2 got into the chase. He soon overhauled the girl, passed her and with a flying tackle grabbed the fleeing young man. The girl told her story to the policeman, and he took the prisoner to the station house, where he was booked.

JAMES L. WHITNEY'S FUNERAL TO-MORROW

The funeral of James Lyman Whitney will be held from his home, No. 2 Divinity place, Cambridge, to-morrow afternoon. Burial will be in Northampton, Mr. Whitney was connected with the Boston Public Library for forty years and at the time of his death was director of documents and statistics. One year ago he said: "I have been the Boston Public Library so long it is mere nothing to what it is to-day. And I hope that up to the day of my death I can remain in the harness." Mr. Whitney was stricken with a paralytic shock on Friday, and his age, seventy-five years, was too great to allow him to rally.

PARSONS LAUDED AT MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial meeting for Professor Frank Parsons who died last year, was held at the Civic Service House, Salem street, and many tributes were paid him as a man who had been for many years identified with the work of the house. Professor Parsons founded the Breed Wineners' Institute, an educational feature, and was prominent in vocation bureau. Myer Bloomfield, director of the house, told of the efforts of Professor Parsons to advance the cause of the institution. Eulogies were given by Erwin M. Mead and Philip Davis. Miss Bessie Edelstein recited.

ACCUSED DOCTOR IS HELD IN $3,500

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 26.—Dr. James O. Bascallade of this city was held in $3,500 for the grand jury which meets in January, at Salem in the police court here to-day, on a charge of illegal practice made by Miss Amelia Eaton, a sixteen-year-old girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Eaton of Salisbury. The girl testified against the physician in court to-day. He pleaded not guilty. When the accused doctor was arrested about two weeks ago Miss Eaton was critically ill.

PASTOR SHOT IN DUEL OVER WOMAN

PORTLAND, Ind., Sept. 26.—Talbert Eaton and P. H. Lewis, pastor of the A. M. E. Church here, were principals in a shooting affray on Main street to-day. Eaton received probably fatal injuries and Lewis was seriously hurt. Eaton charged that Lewis had broken up his home.

ENGLISH PRINCESS TO WED SON OF KING

LONDON, Sept. 26.—It is stated that Princess Alexandra, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Fife, will shortly be betrothed to Prince Christopher, youngest son of the King of the Hellenes. The princess was born May 27, 1891, and the prince August 10, 1888.

PATROLMAN SAVES WOMAN FROM HORSE

Patrolman Frederick H. Corson of station 1 saved an unknown woman from injury or death beneath the hoofs of a runaway horse during a panic in front of the North Station, about 11:30 to-day. Here the frightened animal was tearing madly down Causeway street westward, the woman, who had started across the street, became paralyzed with fear.

HUNT MEN ON CHARGE OF $500 THEATRE THEFT

The police are watching every train and boat leaving the city in an attempt to capture Edward J. Hunt and James F. Hurdle on a charge of stealing $500 belonging to the Palace Theatre on Sudbury street, to-day.

Hunt is thirty years old and lives at Angell court, Malden, while Hurdle, who is thirty-six years old, lived at No. 19 Marble street, South End. They were given $500 and $200 worth of theatre tickets to carry from the Palace Theatre to the Premier Theatre on Washington street.

They delivered the tickets, but it is charged they obstructed the money from the bag. The Premier manager notified the Palace management that the money had not been delivered.

ALPS FLIER CHAVEZ HAS A BAD RELAPSE

DOMODOSSOLLA, Italy, Sept. 26.—The condition of George Chavez, the Peruvian aviator, who made a flight over the Alps in his aeroplane and who was dashed to earth in landing here, took a turn for the worse, and it was feared to-day that he was dying. Another doctor was called into consultation this morning. Chavez suffers intense pain. Both legs are broken and he is suffering from numerous cuts and bruises and internal injuries. He has been awarded $10,000, half of the prize for the Alpine flight.

THREE KILLED IN CRASH.

HERMAND, Mo., Sept. 26.—In a head on collision between freight and passenger train on the Missouri Pacific near here this morning three persons were killed. The dead: Engineer William Murphy; fireman James Wentl; messenger, name unknown.

3 YEARS FOR STABBING.

Thomas J. Toney, twenty-seven years old, of Boston, was to-day sentenced to the State Prison from three to five years by Judge William F. Dana at Dedham, for assaulting with intent to murder, Reginald M. Kneey of Hyde Park on June 2 last. Toney stabbed Kneey in the neck three times.

HAMLIN OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR NOMINATION

Following closely upon his declaration that he is not to be considered as a candidate for the United States senate, but is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Charles S. Hamlin today began a brief, but thorough tour of Western Massachusetts. In the Mussoli Home at Springfield Mr. Hamlin met and talked with two-score of the prominent Democrats of that vicinity. The remainder will be held to-morrow.

The former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury is accompanied into Western Massachusetts by Major Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and Colonel Charles H. Cole, once a Boston Police Commissioner.

"Mr. Hamlin," Major Crowley said over the telephone from Springfield, "is quite as good as nominated. Democrats everywhere have been letting him know how glad they are that he has announced his candidacy."

James H. Valney, who, with Congressman Foss, will contest the gubernatorial nomination with Mr. Hamlin, is booked to make a speech to-night in the Democrats of Malden. Senator Valney will talk about his own candidacy. Malden is the home of Representative Thomas E. Riley, and the Democratic leader of the House of Representatives. Mr. Riley has been touring the State in the interest of Eugene N. Foss. There is great interest in Malden as to what Senator Valney may have to say about the activity of his old friend in behalf of his rival.

Congressman Foss's interests are being taken care of by Mayor Fitzgerald and Senator Weeks. The officials of the State Committee and by such leaders as Representative Riley, who speaks for Foss to-night in Weymouth.

LITTLE GIRL'S DEATH MOURNED BY MANY

Scores of friends attended the funeral services yesterday at the residence of her uncle, Thomas D. Carmichael, No. 149 Foster street, Brighton, of twelve-year-old Marion C. Ross, who died Friday, following an operation for appendicitis, at Copp's Hospital, to-day. The little girl was very popular in the neighborhood. She was the daughter of Mr. Carmichael's sister, Mrs. Harvey B. Ross, whose husband died a year ago. The residence was filled with flowers, tributes from sorrowing friends.

An impressive funeral ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bugbee of the Park Street M. E. Church, Brookline.

Among those who attended was Mr. G. H. McKay of New York, a friend of the family. The interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

DENTIST FOUND "GUILTY" AFTER FIRST HEARING

LONDON, Sept. 26.—A verdict of wilful murder was returned against Dr. H. H. Crippen by a coroner's jury at the conclusion of the inquest into the death of Belle Elmore Crippen to-day. The jury was out only a brief time. The jury further found that the remains disinterred in the cellar of Crippen's Hilldrop Crescent home were those of Belle Elmore, and that death was due to hyoscin poisoning.

SEES GUILT IN CRIPPEN'S FLIGHT.

Coroner Schroeder called special attention of the jury to the flight of Crippen and Ethel LeNeve. He pointed out the precautions that were taken and Crippen's shaving off his mustache and Miss LeNeve disguising herself as a boy. However, he informed the jury that his verdict should not mention Miss LeNeve in any way, as she is charged with being an accessory after the fact.

Coroner Schroeder in summing up and reviewing the evidence instructed the jury as follows: "The final question to be answered is, 'Does the evidence show that death was due to a criminal act?' If so, who committed the act? The only person suspected is the accused, Dr. Crippen. It has been definitely established that Mrs. Crippen disappeared from sight and mind. It has also been established that the letters announcing her resignation from the Music Hall were written by Crippen and that they were carried to the offices of the guild by Miss Ethel LeNeve, Crippen's typist. It has also been testified that Miss LeLNeve was seen wearing Mrs. Crippen's jewels after the latter's disappearance."

Tells of Crippen's Movements.

The story of Dr. H. H. Crippen's movements at the time his wife was supposed to have died in America was told to-day on the witness stand by Miss Marion Curnow, who succeeded Crippen in charge of the London office of the Munyon firm.

Miss Curnow repeated the evidence which she gave when Crippen and Miss LeNeve were arraigned in Bow Street Police Court, charged with the murder of Mrs. Crippen.

She testified that Crippen told her his wife had died in America last February. About the same time he began a series of financial operations which mainly consisted of getting checks cashed. Miss Curnow said that she cashed one $500 check for him. Then she told of Crippen's warning that she must say nothing about his wife's disappearance if questioned by the authorities. She said Crippen left a package with her to be turned over to Miss LeNeve.

Crippen Not in Court.

The absence of Dr. Crippen and his pretty typist did not prevent a crowd from gathering. Attorney Arthur Newton represented the prisoners, but gave no indication of the line of defence which will be adopted when this famous murder trial of international interest starts in Old Bailey, next month.

Gilbert M. Rylance was called to the stand and repeated practically the same story he had previously told. Rylance and Crippen, under the firm name of Crippen & Rylance, embarked in a business enterprise for the making of false teeth.

Rylance testified that Crippen had told him that his wife died in America last March, following this Crippen told him he had married his typist, Miss Le Neve.

CRANK ON WAY TO KILL DRAPER

Oscar Hanlon was caught by six brothers while on his way to the State House to shoot Governor Draper to-day. He was turned over to the police and will be returned to the Boston Insane Asylum, from which he escaped yesterday.

Hanlon lived in Newton until he became insane. Since he has been in the asylum he has been one of the most carefully watched of the patients. Twice he succeeded in sending out letters to Governor Draper. In each he said:

"If you do not gain my release within a short time I will go hard with you. I will get out, and when I do my first business will be to find you and shoot you."

Both letters were turned over to the police. When word came yesterday that the man had escaped, the police began a diligent search and his description was given to all officers in and about the State House.

He was caught on the street to-day by his two brothers. He was violent and said that he was on his way to right his wrongs. The two brothers offered to assist him and by so doing succeeded in leading him to Station 5, where he was turned over to the police.

HURT IN WATER CART RUNAWAY

William H. Stokes, driver in the Highway Department of Revere, is in the Frost Hospital in Chelsea suffering from a fracture of the right arm and several bruises broken as a result of being violently thrown off his seat on the sprinkling car he was driving in a runaway accident to-day. One of his horses had been transferred from the fire to the Street Department, because it was an whitish.

Stokes was driving down the steep grade on Ambrose when a neck chain broke and the horses bolted. Unable to check them he tried to drive the cart so that a wheel would strike a tree. The pole bit squarely instead, one horse passing on one side and the other on the other of the barrier, while the wagon pole, the seat and the front of the barrel-shaped tank were all smashed. Stokes was tossed high in the air and had a narrow escape from being killed.

GOOD PRICES AT SYMPHONY SALE

Prices paid to-day for seats for the twenty-four rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra averaged higher than last year, though the best premium paid to-day fell short of the high water mark reached in last year's auction. The sale was held to-day in Symphony Hall, with about 250 persons, mostly women, attending. The bidding was spirited. In the first twenty minutes, 100 seats were sold. In two hours more than one-half of the total of 1200 seats were auctioned off.

The highest price paid to-day was $73, for each of the two seats, N 18 and 19. This premium represents the cost of the seat over and above the necessary $18 demanded. The first bid for the seats was $50. Last year the highest bid for the highest price paid was $86.

N 20 and 21 brought each but $45. The second highest price paid to-day was $72 for each of N 16 and 17. The third highest price was $71 for each of L 27 and 28.

LORDS MUST TRIM OWN POWER OR GO, REDMOND ASSERTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—"The House of Lords has got to vote to curtail its own powers. When they refused once before, a certain English gentleman with some troops turned them out and locked the doors."

Without the slightest excitement, but with every evidence of meaning exactly what he said, John E. Redmond, the distinguished Irish Nationalist who arrived here on the White Star liner Baltic, made this statement at the Hoffman House just before the party left for Buffalo to-day. With him at the time were three other Irish members of Parliament, T. P. O'Connor, Joseph Devlin and Dan Boyle, and they all acquiesced in Mr. Redmond's words.

EXPECT CORDIAL SUPPORT.

The four men are delegates from the Irish Nationalist party to the Convention of the United Irish League, which will be opened in Buffalo to-morrow. They have come as the leaders in the Irish home rule fight, and their object in coming to this country is to collect funds to continue the fight after the opening of Parliament on November 15. Two years ago they took back $100,000 with them, but they expect a much larger sum this year.

At the conclusion of the Buffalo convention Mr. O'Connor will go to Boston for a series of speeches, while the others will return to this city to address a big meeting at Carnegie Hall next Sunday night. Messrs. Redmond, Devlin and Boyle will also speak in Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Louis. They will then meet Mr. O'Connor on the return from Canada, and the rest of the country, or as much of it as can be covered in the limited time the Irishmen have, will be visited.

Violence in Prospect.

Throughout his talk Mr. Redmond made it clear that he and his associates fully expect violence if the House of Lords does not yield to the home rulers.

Mr. Redmond said: "The object of our coming to this country is to put the exact question of the Irish movement before our countrymen here. We are the delegates of the National party in Ireland. The prospects were never more favorable than now for a trial the power of the House of Lords. This power is rapidly decreasing. It is the only obstacle to home rule. The House of Commons favors home rule. And there is a contest going on between the House of Lords and the people of England, though their representatives in the House of Commons for popular legislation, and one question before the public is the question of home rule for Ireland.

"There is a conference now sitting in England which is arranging matters of which home rule for Ireland is one, but if this leads to nothing there will be probably an election on that issue, which will lead to something. The curtailing of the House of Lords is the issue on which both the Liberal and Unionist parties. This conference is a result of one which sat before the death of King Edward, but which will be renewed this Fall.

The Three Great Questions.

"The power of the House of Lords is the question under discussion. It involves progressive methods. Home rule for Ireland is one question, the disestablishment of the church of England in Wales is a great question, that part of the empire—is another, the extension of suffrage is a third.

"The last convention held in America resulted in our obtaining a great financial and moral support to bring about the granting of the great issue, to obtain large sums for the development of the west of Ireland, and the obtaining of cheap loans to build laborers' cottages. The Whole movement is for betterment.

"We will accomplish the curtailment of the House of Lords, and soon indeed. The great bulk of the English people has been on record for some time as in favor of this. The House of Lords is the last of the great landed class.

"They have little or no power, but this question in debate will, I feel, come home to small cultivators, large farmers and small gentry.

"We have no objections of their continuing to occupy themselves with social functions at his palatial and wearing a sombrero, but the House of Lords, in its present condition, is as dead as a herring. I fled industrial conditions elsewhere.

DRAPER GUARD FORCED OUT BY LOVE TANGLE

District Policeman William J. McDowell, the special guard of Governor Draper, resigned to-day. His resignation was accepted by Chief Whitney. Back of the resignation is the story of how the detective became involved in a love affair in Boston hotel a few evenings ago which has resulted in George F. Estabrook of Worcester taking legal measures to secure a divorce from his young and pretty wife.

McDowell was formerly a patrolman in Worcester. Here he met Mrs. Estabrook and she introduced him to her husband as the detective had been on the lookout for Estabrook, who was wanted on a charge of non-support. He has been body guard to Governor Draper since the latter took office a year ago, and the Governor has remarked more than once about his efficiency.

Trailed to Boston.

Estabrook, remarked the absence of his wife within the past few weeks and consulted Lawyer Harrison W. Bowker of Worcester. Bowker suggested that he employ some sleuths and have his wife trailed. Bowker says that the detectives followed Mrs. Estabrook and McDowell to one or more places, but were unable to get such evidence as they desired and then they hired a man from Worcester to trail them in an automobile. They came to Boston.

While McDowell was guarding the Governor on Beacon Hill, one of the Estabrook sleuths was guarding McDowell. He followed McDowell to Boston and went to the hotel. He found he was, that McDowell and Mrs. Estabrook had gone to the hotel. Then the detective telephoned to her husband and he with half a dozen friends went to the same hotel and waiting until evening they knocked at the door and were admitted to the room where the man and woman were.

Surprised by Detectives.

Mrs. Estabrook screamed. McDowell made a pass at Estabrook's nose, narrowly missing it. Estabrook said he had all the evidence he wanted for an action for divorce and he and his friends returned to Worcester, leaving the trailed couple behind.

Mrs. Estabrook is twenty-three. She and her husband have been married seven years.

FRENCH AVIATOR AND PASSENGER INJURED

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Aviator Lordan and a passenger were hurt seriously, it is feared, when their machine capsized at St. Quentin to-day during an attempted flight from this city to Brussels, Belgium, to win the $30,000 prize offered by the Aero Club and the $5,000 prize of the municipal council. The biplane in which the two were riding capsized at a great height and they were dashed to earth. This is the second accident that Lordan has met with while attempting this flight.

CADETS RESCUE 26 HORSES FROM FIRE

Twenty-six horses were rescued by a company of cadets of the Holy Name Brigade of the Church of the Assumption when fire destroyed the 2½-story wooden stable of Dominic Cerulli at No. 47 Everett street, East Boston, and badly damaged the stable of Roscoe Perry in the rear. The cadets were drilling for the $1,500. The cadets were drilling for the coming Columbus Day parade when the fire was discovered.

CABINET HOLDS WAR COUNCIL TO RESCUE PARTY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—How to save the Republican party in the Fall congressional campaign and how to save the presidency for the party in 1912 were the two big topics in the discussion to-day by President Taft's Cabinet. It was believed that these two questions were the principal reasons for the convocation of the President's official family in the three days' council.

Other topics up for consideration include: Judicial appointments, including the Supreme Court vacancies and the creation of a new Court of Commerce; departmental reports and estimates of expenditures for the coming fiscal year; plans for greater efficiency and economy in the government departments; the putting into operation of the postal savings banks system; foreign affairs, including the readjustment of customs duties in Cuba and consideration of recent events in Panama and the extension of the civil service to include assistant postmasters and permanent clerks in the money order offices.

All Members But One Present.

All the members were present at the meeting excepting Secretary of War Dickinson, who is in China. A strenuous program for the three days has been mapped out, but adequate time for recreation has been allowed.

Breakfast, at which business affairs will be informally discussed, will begin each morning at 9:30 o'clock. The cabinet will formally meet at 11 o'clock each day and adjourn at 1:30 for luncheon. Then if weather conditions permit will come golf, horseback riding, automobiling and other forms of recreation until the dinner hour, 7:30 o'clock in evening.

Over coffee and cigars the President expects it is said, to have night cabinet meetings.

Busy Week, Says Taft.

Attorney-General Wickersham and Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel were the first of the cabinet members to arrive. By 11 o'clock the members had assembled in the cabinet room, where President Taft joined them. The President had been talking to the newspaper correspondents and his session then that there was a busy week ahead.

Major-General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., chief of staff, Representative Madden of Illinois and Representative Stevenson of Wisconsin called at the White House to pay their respects to Mr. Taft early in the day.

D. A. R. COUNCIL IS IN SESSION TO-DAY

The State Council, D. A. R. of Massachusetts, held its first meeting of the year to-day in the Colonial Building, with the State Regent Mrs. G. E. Smith, of Swampscott, presiding. The treasurer, Mrs. E. B. Wheeler, reported that $700 had been raised during the Summer by whist and lawn parties. This money will be used to help build the memorial at Annapolis, it was reported that a "living" pageant will be held this Winter.

The first meeting of the new year will be held October 5 at the Hotel Vendome. Miss Mary S. Lockwood, of Washington, the National Registrar, will preside. Thirteen members were elected to the council to-day.

LAKE ROMANCE LEADS TO BEACH WEDDING

After a courtship that began when the two met on the shores of Lake Winnipesaukee a year ago, Miss Helen Marie Callahan, information operator in the Oxford Exchange, and George K. Lord of Lynn, will be married Wednesday morning, at 9:30 o'clock in the Beachmont Catholic Church. Mr. Lord is a broker's clerk in the employ of White & Bowditch, No. 53 State street. He is the son of George K. Lord of Lynn, a member of the Boston Stock Exchange. The couple will live at 12 Garrison avenue, West Somerville.

OLD SOLDIER ILL, GOES TO HOSPITAL

Franklin Rogers, aged seventy-four, and a veteran of the Civil War, who was until last week an inmate of the Soldiers' Home in Togus, Me., applied at the office of John F. Gilman, commander of G. A. R. and City Commissioner of Charities, to-day, suffering from exhaustion. He asked to be sent somewhere for treatment, and was conveyed in an ambulance to the City Hospital.

LORDS TO VOTE IN COMMONS IF STRIFE COMES?

LONDON, Sept. 26.—It is now believed that the conference of political leaders on the future of the House of Lords reached an agreement on many points before the Summer recess. Credible reports are to the effect that the agreement is as follows: That the bill that has passed the House of Commons has been rejected three times by the House of Lords then the peers shall join the House of Commons to vote on the bill.

The really important question of the proportion of peers at once carry in this bill or that it be agreed upon if sufficient is possible that the conference may eventually fail on that point.

If the peers are to be selected in proportion to the strength of the Liberal and Tories in the House of Lords it would mean that at least 80 per cent. would be Tories and they would swamp any but an exceptionally large Liberal majority in the House of Commons.

King George has conferred during the Summer with Premier Asquith and the prominent committee in charge of the problem. Premier Asquith, Lloyd-George, Lord Crewe and Augustus Birrell on behalf of the Liberals, and Arthur Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, Austen Chamberlain and Lord Cawdor, on behalf of the Tories, have urged each to come to an agreement which is to be made the issue at the next election.

It is proposed that the committee members agreed upon shall not go into effect until after the next general election.

RAILROAD CHIEF ATTACKS ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—One of the first questions asked President Brown of the New York Central railroad, when he arrived here to-day on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria was:

"What do you think of the Maine election?"

"Well, it looks very much to me as through the next Congress would be Democratic," replied the railroad chief.

Mr. Brown then took occasion to comment on what he termed "unsettled financial conditions" and "the Roosevelt campaign."

The Michigan Central road has $17,000 acres of timber on sale in Europe, and be cause of the unsettled conditions here it has not sold one. The same conditions were not helped in Colonel Roosevelt going through the West with a train load of "big" men.

"We have an objection of their continuing to occupy themselves with social functions at his palatial and wearing a sombrero, but the House of Lords, in its present condition, is as dead as a herring. I fled industrial conditions elsewhere.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight London Time

American Girl Decoy for Swindler Gang.

BERLIN—A young woman who before her marriage was Miss Florida Settle and who has many relatives in New York and elsewhere in America, is wanted by the police here in connection with swindles perpetrated by the gang headed by a man known as the Marquis Ramee. The girl came to Europe when she was eighteen years old. She belonged to a respectable family of farmers in a Southern State. For nine years, the police say, she has been the chief decoy in the gang organized by Ramee. She is married to a member of the band, a former lieutenant in the German Army, named Goebel, now nominally a partner in an automobile factory. On account of her great beauty and charm of manner Florida has been employed chiefly in Paris, Interlaken and Lucerne in decoying young men of wealth into the net spread by the cardsharpers.

Ministers at War Game.

LONDON—Five members of the British Ministry—Home Secretary Churchill, Local Government Board President Burns, Irish Secretary Birrel, Under Colonial Secretary Seeley and War Minister Haldane—are attending the army manoeuvres; a fact without precedent in the history of the British army.

In fact, in the wager book at the Brooks' Club there is recorded a bet made last November by Lord Rosebery with Lord Chancellor Loreburn that before that date in 1916 compulsory service will be in operation in these Islands.

South American Alliance.

BERLIN—Experts in world politics here are making a great play with the alleged prospect of a triple alliance in South America, which will take in, according to the announcement, Brazil, Argentina and Chili.

The political part, as the experts may it out, is to be known as the A B C alliance. The keynote of such an alliance in the eyes of Germany would be the probability of its acting as a counterpoise to the "ever-growing influence of the United States."

"Future Battles in the Air."

LONDON—Sir Hiram Maxim says: "I don't regard the present flying machines as a finality by any means. In a few years all the great nations will have aeroplanes for military service. In a year from now the French army will be equipped with aeroplanes able to leave French territory with a load of 400 pounds besides petrol and the driver.

"In future battles will be fought in the air, flying machines being auxiliary to the land forces.

Queen Mother to Quit Spain.

VIENNA—As a direct sequel to the Madrid government's split with the Vatican, it is considered certain that the mother of the Queen-Mother of Spain, intends to quit her adopted country next month. Several residences have been offered to her, but she has declined hospitality. Her final choice is said to lie between the Freudenthal estate of her brother, the Archduke Salvator, and the palace of Archduchess Clothilde at Budapest.

Alfonso Gay in Crisis.

MADRID, Spain—King Alfonso's gayety of behavior in the crisis through which Spain is passing occasions much comment. He parades his partiality for ardently as if there were no reason why he should have a care, while all about him are plunged in anxiety. Dread of a catastrophe is wearing both his mother and his wife, and gloom pervades the royal household while the King seems intent only on fun.

American Opear a Success.

BERLIN—Giacomo Minkowski of San Francisco has achieved pronounced success with his operatta, The Fairest Woman," just produced in the Berlin Western Theatre. His brilliant work surprised the critics here, who were mostly ignorant of Minkowski's antecedents and manner that "Smuggle of Bajadoz" was played four hundred times in America.

Canadian Lieutenant Dead.

ALDERSHOT, Eng.—Lieutenant Roy Growski of the Queen's Own Canadian Rifles, died to the military hospital to-day of pneumonia. Lieutenant Growski accompanied the Rifles to England from Canada. He fell ill shortly after their arrival and was placed in the hospital. His comrades sailed for home on Saturday.

Princess to Meet Intended.

LONDON—Princess Clemengtine of Belgium is expected in England to-day on a visit to the Empress Eugenie at Farnborough, where Prince Victor Napoleon is now staying. It is understood that the date and place of their marriage will be settled upon this visit.

Turkey Seeks German Cash.

PARIS—The sudden departure last night of Hakki Bey, the Turkish Grand Vizier, who visited Paris in connection with the proposed Turkish loan, creates the impression that he attempt to float the loan in Berlin. The amount of the proposed loan is about $50,000,000.

ROOSEVELT LEAVES FOR CONVENTION

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt left Grand Central at 9:30 a. m. for Saratoga to attend the Republican State Convention. Just before he left several of his closest friends assorted with the greatest positiveness that he would under no circumstances accept the nomination for Governor. In reply to a direct question he refused to make matter. Colonel Roosevelt replied: "I have nothing to say."

"You don't seem worried over the expected action of the Saratoga convention, Colonel," said the reporter.

"No, there's nothing to be worried about," said Colonel Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt was accompanied by Former United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson, who, it is rumored, is the Roosevelt candidate for Governor; State Senator J. Mayhew Wainwright of Westchester and William H. Wadhams.

On the way to the train the Colonel was met by Charles W. Anderson, the negro deputy collector of the port, who was appointed by Roosevelt when he was President. Colonel Roosevelt greeted him warmly.

"I'm very glad to see you, Charlie," he said. "I'm awful glad you're going with us."

This was the condition of affairs in Saratoga before the arrival of Theodore Roosevelt to-day. With practically all the delegates and leaders on the ground, the final details of the struggle were held in abeyance until the arrival of the Colonel.

The old guard prepared to contest every more proposed by the Roosevelt bench-bent, but many of the leaders in the Barnes-Woodruff-Wadsworth faction privately conceded the election of Roosevelt. The fight of the reactionaries was centered upon direct primaries and the increasing of the size of the State committee.

Fight is to a Finish.

Both sides declared that there would be no compromise; that the fight must be decisive and final.

"Colonel Roosevelt will have at least two-thirds delegates for him and may be more," said Mr. Griscom to-day following a conference with Theodore Collins of Troy, Herbert Parsons and other leaders.

The battle of battle ends the Old Guard apparently hopeless but defiantly drawn up for its final battle under William Barnes, Jr., who has as his staff Speaker Wadsworth, Timothy Woodruff, Henry Wade and Abe Gruber.

Welcoming peacemakers to-day advanced the names of Congressman Wreland of Rochester and President Schurman of Cornell University as compromise candidates for Governor and confidently say in practically every instance they retired abashed and convinced that compromise had no place in Roosevelt's program.

Bitter comment on President Taft was openly indulged in. A group of the leaders of declarations that Federal employes were forced into the fight for Governor. Graber in the United States Hotel openly charged that Taft had been permitted to use the Federal strength in this State as a club to further his ends.

Plot Against Roosevelt.

It was shown conclusively that Roosevelt is the keystone of the situation in the almost feverishly anxious preparations for his arrival this afternoon. From the status of affairs it looked as though the Republican nominee for Governor might be a dark horse. One story which gained currency to-day was that Roosevelt, on the part of the Old Guard to have Colonel Roosevelt himself nominated.

The clue to this lies in the alleged information from the Barnes quarters was that if Colonel Roosevelt were chosen temporary chairman, his name would be put in nomination for the governorship. The Old Guard would see to it that he was nominated with plenty of noise. Then following the convention, the Old Guard would bend every energy within its power to defeat Roosevelt at the polls.

Those are the words of three of the discussing gubernatorial candidacies and men whose "names are complimentarily mentioned," talked of late following "finished" to-day.

COURT STOPS SALE IN EAST BOSTON

In the equity session of the Suffolk Superior Court to-day Judge Pierce issued an injunction restraining John Booth from conveying real estate at Nos. 59-61 Leyden street, East Boston, which Carmelo Capillo says is his property. Booth advanced Capillo money for a liquor license, it is alleged, and Capillo gave the East Boston property as security. Capillo says he has made a settlement in full with Booth, who is now exercising the right of ownership in the property.

HELD FOR BEATING POLICE AND THEFT

Coleman Donohue of No. 376 Second street was arraigned in the South Boston court to-day charged with larceny and assault and battery. He was sentenced to seven months' imprisonment, but appealed and was held in $600. Donohue took two packages from the express wagon of E. J. Burke while assaulting him. He also attacked Officer Martin Haverty of station 6, who attempted to arrest him.

GIRL TRIED SUICIDE THAT SHE MIGHT BE REINCARNATED IN MORE "MORAL AGE"

REMARKABLE STORY OF VERA FITCH, WHO SHOT HERSELF IN HOTEL ASTOR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Miss Vera Fitch in her first public interview granted to the New York American declares that she believes she would be reincarnated in a more moral age when she shot herself on August 20 in the Hotel Astor. The tragedy has hitherto been shrouded with mystery. At first the friends of the young woman even denied her identity.

"I realized that I would be punished, punished severely, if I were successful in my effort at suicide," she said. "I knew it was wrong to take one's life. Nevertheless, I was willing to endure the penalty in preference to my present unhappiness. I could not help doing what I did any more than if some one had pushed me over a precipice. I was slckened by the evil of the world as it exists to-day.

Motive Told in Letters.

"The letters which unfortunately were made public gave but the merest hint of the anguish from which I suffered. I found that certain men were permitted to contaminate society—to prey upon young girls under the mask of aiding them—while at the same time apparently enjoying a most estimable reputation.

"I dreamed of a better day when such men would be unknown, when the world would have one moral standard for both men and women. In the belief that I might live again in that purer time I tried to kill myself."

Miss Fitch is still in Flower Hospital. She lay propped upon pillows in a little room off the main corridor. Outwardly she gave few tokens of her critical condition—of the fact that she had almost died after an operation. The surgeons failed to locate the bullet, but prevented death from blood poisoning.

She was dressed as for a party in a gown of lace and silk. A large cream-colored ribbon was wound into her long black hair. The chamber seemed like a sick room, for its bleakness had been dispelled by many feminine touches, plainly indicating the artistic nature of the patient. A pearled shade enveloped the electric light. A band of silk was swathed around the lower fronds of a fern near the head of the bed. Trade of silken cord hung from the chandelier. And all these little necessities, like the ribbon in her hair, were of the same creamy tint.

Wrong to Make a Mystery.

But this cheek and shadows beneath the eyelids told Miss Fitch's story before a word was spoken.

"It took me a long time to consent to the interview," said Miss Fitch, "it is the only blemish of the many erroneous stories that have been printed about me that I decided to speak to the American. Until a few days ago I was unable to read the papers. It was all wrong to make a mystery of my case.

"The letters you wrote to your mother, your sister, and to a young friend, addressed as 'Blanche,' and which were made public by the police indicated that you sought suicide because you found a girl cannot get along honorably in New York," said the reporter.

The letters were read to her as printed. The one to her mother was as follows:

Never reproach yourself for what I am about to do. You have been an angel of love to me and I regret that I cause you this trouble. The Fourth Estate has proven too strong for me to cope with. It has driven me against the wall, and, being defenceless, I resort to this cowardly act. Then, too, I hate the hypocrisy and sordidness and disillusions of life. That is all I have not with, now to face. In the last two years, and now I seek oblivion.

I can hear you say, dear, 'It is very wrong for one to take one's own life—no matter what the motive.' * * * It is really deplorable that a girl cannot get along honorably in New York. In some things I might have succeeded had I conceded to the wishes of men, cultured usually, but unless moral, Death is preferable.

"I wish I had these letters to show how much they were garbled by the person who gave them to the press," said the girlish patient, with something like a shudder. Now, let me tell just how it all happened.

Hoped for a Literary Career.

"When I came to live in New York, about two years ago, I had the highest hopes of a literary career. I had been my ambition since a child to write books that might turn the minds of people toward better and purer things.

"I tried to find a publisher for some short stories I had written while a student at Darlington Seminary, at West Chester, Pa., during the earlier half of 1908, but was soon convinced that I had a great deal to learn before my writings would come up to a standard that would merit permanent success.

"In the meantime I had to make a living. My sister and her husband, Rex Cowan, had been kind to me. They had asked me to live in their home. They offered me real aid. But I did not seem to me right that I should depend upon the goodness of relations. I wanted to succeed through my own efforts.

"To the men I met in a social way I talked freely of my ambitions. At first I thought all of them took the keenest interest. Every one offered to aid me. At last a pleasant, a hopeful soul for me

Merely Plotting Ruin.

"But all too soon I found that some of those who purported to show the liveliest regard in my career were only plotting my ruin. I speak plainly, although it is with the keenest regret, and only for the purpose of affording what may help to enable and a warning to other girls who are even now beset by the same dangers.

"For example, one wealthy man told me it would be proper to accept a certain stipend from him in order that I might study and still further prepare myself for the work of an author. Generously he invited me to go among buildings. Once he said:

"'I do not see my motor car enough to keep it busy. I wish you would be so kind if you would use it whenever you please. You probably call up the garage and it will be sent to your house.'

"But I soon began to suspect this offensive adulator. One evening he called me up on the telephone and asked me to take supper with him. I fashionable Broadway restaurant. I turned to a woman friend and said:

"'I wish you would accept this man's invitation for me. I feel that I should like him what he thinks of me and what is the meaning of his persistence.'

"My friend took dinner with him, and after he had drunk considerably he put his guard, he said:

"'Do you know, I planned to-night to catch that little girl friend of yours, sometimes a man has one line for you. What I intended to do was to put some dope in her glass.

Trip to Paris.

"I met another man who I at first admired. He was not only a wealthy business man, but had a penchant for books, and had written some of his own short works.

"He read my writings and spoke of them encouragingly. I believed every word he said. He did not look at me with a leering battery. Then one day he said:

"'Little girl, you ought to go to Paris to finish. What do you say to taking a trip with me to Paris? I am going to-morrow for the Semaine. You cannot only enjoy the sights of the Old World, but you will find opportunity to study and write. In the world of music, art and literature, you know, there are no conventions do not obtain. Come.'

"The insult have cut me had I not died from his presence. Yet he seemed more astonished than indignant, apparently he thought such a proposition a most ordinary thing, and was surprised that I did not seize such an opportunity.

Tells of a Motor Car Ride.

"Among young men in New York society I found also an appalling lack of morality, thought. A girl friend and myself once took a motor car ride on the Boston Post road with two young men, one of high, respectable famers. We stopped for luncheon at a wayside inn, and the young men ordered wine. I did not touch it, and when I insisted on abstinence, my escort began to speak impudently. He said I was a prude that if I ever hoped to get anywhere in New York social circles I would have to be a good fellow. On the way home his language became still more broad, and I threatened to call an officer.

"Was it then the disgust for men and your failure to achieve literary success through their deception that drove you to attempt suicide?" I asked.

"No, but that alone," was the reply. "I am a believer in reincarnation. I have long been a student of theosophy. I feel positive that we die to live again, although I know not whether we again assume the same individuality. There are certain conditions, certain unconscious states of feeling that seem to be echoes of a former existence.

"I thought, therefore, that if I should kill myself it would not be an eternal death. I knew I should suffer for the deed. And I have suffered ever since I came out of the ether after an operation lasting an hour and forty minutes.

"One night what I believed to be the spirit of my father appeared at the foot of the bed. The apparition, or rather, the thought, awakened by what seemed to be the apparition, greatly comforted me. If I could have died then I would have seemed to get comfort, for I would not have left alone.

Her Idea of Reincarnation.

"I expressed the idea of reincarnation in a sort of exaggerated fashion in the little story 'Thessalia,' the manuscript of which I took with me to the Hotel Astor on the night I shot myself, and which I wanted buried with me. I will give you just an outline of the story.

"Two young men are exploring a wild, mountainous region in Greece. One is an artist, the other a writer. By chance they loosen a large boulder and discover a grotto leading into the earth. Prompted by curiosity, the two youths enter the cavern, and upon building a fire they behold a beautiful statue of a woman in the form of Circe.

"The truth at last dawns upon them that in a past age these same two men lived in Greece, and had sought to escape from the follies and sins of the world in this retreat. The artist was a sculptor in the former life, and had carved the statue of his beloved, Thessalia, who had died just before she was to become his bride. The inscriptions on the wall were the writings of the author, who had once been a Grecian poet.

Relief to Tell Secret.

An expression of severe pain suddenly flashed across the face of the fair speaker. At the same moment she pressed her hand to her side. Until then she had hid the agonizing suspense except that she lifted the hand that was free to brush back the black curls from her forehead.

"But was artistic," she said. "This girl is not trying me. It is a sort of relief to tell what is on my mind.

"Then it is not true that it was a sainted romance which made you think of suicide?" asked the reporter.

"No, no," replied Miss Fitch with evident gratification. "I want it understood that by my mental all of the world I me meant no harm. I have met men whom I still believe to be noble and have received proposed marriage. But I knew some of them would bring me to the gutter, for which I longed. They did not have the same sympathy.

"One young man once said to me: 'Why don't you write? You have some fine with literary work.' What is the use of doing any work unless you have the encouragement of some one to help you? Have you no relatives?'

"I told him that Miss Grunspan was my cousin, and that she was in Paris. He then asked me to write to her, and I did so. I pleaded with her to help me, and begged him to intercede for her brothers, who had been arrested as revolutionists in St. Petersburg. It was because he succeeded in freeing them, Walling's letters say, that Miss Grunspan became infatuated with the American millionaire.

"I Thirst to Kiss You."

Extracts from the letters written to Miss Grunspan will prove to be among the most novel exhibits ever produced in a Supreme Court action.

The first letter to be read by Mr. Peters has this passage:

To be sure you and never to leave you would be the absolutely ideal. * * * It is true that I have to right over you. You are my benefactor, in superior, but, so it is my duty to stand by your wife, and not by your mind.

Then follows a letter written on Mr. Walling July 13, 1905. In this Miss Grunspan says:

* * * but now you are so far from me, and no more think of her than loves you, of her who has a thirst to kiss your lips.

I know you don't love me, you tell me, but unfortunately I can't say the same, for I feel a great deal for you are at my side, etc. * * *

Calls Herself "Little Fool."

I ought to say you do me nothing but good, but I cannot, for every time that I receive a letter in which are these words: "I will not permit any one to love me. I do not wish to love," that gives the vertigo, makes me indifferent to everything, and everything and everybody except me.

Do not love; never love without being loved, and don't be without a person who cannot and will not understand you.

I send you a thousand excuses, dearest you know that I wish you no evil; it is at myself that I am angry, for I have for you only gratitude and appreciation. God grant that you have done only too much for me, but I lack courage, little fool.

Then follows a letter written in London in November, 1905, in which Miss Grunspan says:

Your coolness with regard to me has been very kind, and you will never have anything to reproach yourself for. * * *

I beg you take me. I would be to you as a sister to a brother. I can't say more. If you don't want me to join you in Russia I will join you. I return to Paris without you, and I will go to some other country where you will have the kindness to want to see me again. If you don't agree to have me come to see you, beloved, it is because you have ceased to love me at all.

"Cannot Sleep at Night."

The last letters are written to Paris. In one the writer says:

You would do everything to make you happy, believe me, beloved; nothing will so reflect you, and I should do all that it will be possible for me to do to order that you may be happy with me.

Judge if it is possible for a young girl like me to resist so much grief. * * * But I cannot sleep at night.

Mr. Walling is a graduate of Chicago University and of the Harvard Law School, where he began the practice of his profession in Chicago.

GIRL WROTE OF THIRST TO KISS HARVARD MAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—William English Walling, Harvard graduate, millionaire, author, Socialist, settlement worker, husband of Anna Strunsky, the young Russian authoress, and grandson of William H. English of Indiana, who once ran for Vice President of the United States, has decided to abandon in court Miss Anna Berlin Grunspan, a French girl, to compel her to tell where, as she alleges, Walling assisted to smuggle her sick sister into Russia.

Mr. Walling expects to prove that a claim for $100,000 made by the young woman is without basis by exhibiting letters which Miss Grunspan wrote him.

Mr. Walling says he met Miss Grunspan in Paris five years ago, and that he befriended her when she came to New York and begged him to intercede for her brothers, who had been arrested as revolutionists in St. Petersburg. It was because he succeeded in freeing them, Walling's lawyer says, that Miss Grunspan became infatuated with the American millionaire.

I know you don't love me, you tell me, but unfortunately I can't say the same, for I feel a great deal for you are at my side, etc. * * *

Calls Herself "Little Fool."

I ought to say you do me nothing but good, but I cannot, for every time that I receive a letter in which are these words: "I will not permit any one to love me. I do not wish to love," that gives the vertigo, makes me indifferent to everything, and everything and everybody except me.

Do not love; never love without being loved, and don't be without a person who cannot and will not understand you.

I send you a thousand excuses, dearest you know that I wish you no evil; it is at myself that I am angry, for I have for you only gratitude and appreciation. God grant that you have done only too much for me, but I lack courage, little fool.

Then follows a letter written in London in November, 1905, in which Miss Grunspan says:

Your coolness with regard to me has been very kind, and you will never have anything to reproach yourself for. * * *

I beg you take me. I would be to you as a sister to a brother. I can't say more. If you don't want me to join you in Russia I will join you. I return to Paris without you, and I will go to some other country where you will have the kindness to want to see me again. If you don't agree to have me come to see you, beloved, it is because you have ceased to love me at all.

"Cannot Sleep at Night."

The last letters are written to Paris. In one the writer says:

You would do everything to make you happy, believe me, beloved; nothing will so reflect you, and I should do all that it will be possible for me to do to order that you may be happy with me.

Judge if it is possible for a young girl like me to resist so much grief. * * * But I cannot sleep at night.

TITLED DANCER WHO SAYS HER ART IS HEALTH GIVING

The Countess Sarafina

COUNTESS BEGS YANKEE GIRLS TO DANCE MORE

American girls would be fortunes and more graceful if they would dance more," said the round titled dancer, Countess of Sarafina, who is well known in Boston.

"Dancing makes every girl who indulges in it graceful and more attractive. American girls are inclined to be too stiff, and dancing would remove this stiffness, and make them equal to the European society girls who most easily surpass them in grace and beauty. Also, dancing gives a girl a trim figure and does not make her short waisted. She should wear shoes too small for her, but low cut and no high heels and wear gloves that really fit her feet, and she will not only be much more comfortable but more graceful and attractive.

"Among society women of this country, seems to be to achieve a No. 6 figure. I have seen many women who have a small waist, but this portion of their figure gives a small base. What is desired is taper of the foot stream and to a proper degree. Dancing will do it a much better manner to corset, they will not only be much more comfortable but more graceful.

"Another reason why I think more women should dance than I saw a New York audience the other night. They refused to be led by gentlemen and sport. They seem to want to keep the men in dress, habits and other effects in fashion, on the other hand, to give a small dog. Dancing is one of the best means to make a woman graceful and to a proper degree. Dancing will do it a much better manner to corset, they will not only be much more comfortable but more graceful.

"I think the American girl is the equal, if not the superior, to any girl in the world, and would be more considerate of women. But I think the discretion should be introduced in the American dress. In dress everything is not for a woman, and for that reason I think this fact is overlooked in the European."

TAFT COMPLIMENTS COMMANDER GILMAN

John F. Gilman, City Councilman of Fitchburg, and Commander of the Gilman Post of the G. A. R., at the encampment in Attantic City last week, returned to his office at the Charlton street, Thursday morning. On his desk he found a telegram of congratulation from President Taft, elected Gilmanite. "I congratulate you on being elected commander-in-chief of the Republic. I know your predecessors will find you an able successor. I trust you may be a continued success." Included in the encampment at my home prevented my attending, but appointed Mrs. Taft to go in a big bunch of roses from the employes of the office.

NOTED CLUBWOMAN DIES IN MELROSE

Mrs. Anna J. B. Adams, wife of Charles H. Adams, business manager of the Boston Advertiser and Record, died today at the Melrose Hospital. She was the daughter of Ezekiel and Nancy Brooks of Melrose, N. H. Mrs. Adams was a former president of the Wednesday Club, and a member of the Daughters of Massachusetts, the Faneuil Hall, Chapter D. A. R. She was prominently connected with many other social and charitable organizations. She is survived by a husband and two daughters, Mrs. E. S. Taylor of Spring field, Mass., and Mrs. C. T. Bond of Melrose. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the family residence.

SUBPOENA FOR GOV. DENEEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 26. Making of testimony in the investigation of the election of U. S. Senator Lorimer before the subcommittee of the committee on privileges and elections in the United States Senate was begun today at the Congress Hotel. A subpoena has been issued for Governor Charles Deneen.

Senator Julius Caesar Burrows is chairman of the committee. Members declared today that the inquiry would be thorough and that there positively was no plan to whitewash Lorimer. Senator Burrows on Saturday overruled Lorimer's plea to have the inquiry postponed until after the Fall election for fear it would hurt his friends on the ticket. Among the thirty-five witnesses who have been called are Lee O'Neil Browne, who recently was acquitted on charges of bribery in connection with Lorimer's election; Representative Charles A. White, State Senator Hoffice and Representative Broderick, all of whom confessed before a grand jury that they had accepted money for votes for Lorimer.

DIABETES

From late figures the hope of recovery under the new emollient treatment seems to be about as follows:

If people of sixty and over results are quite uniform, probably nine-tenths recovering. While at fifty and many a lighter case of years yield to the treatment, below fifty and appreciably forty the disease gets more stubborn, and between forty and forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.

Under thirty the percentage of recovering in children recoveries have been very few and most of those were obtained with the aid of skilled physicians without, and scholars' treatment to prevent formation of acetonas.

The new emollient treatment is known as Pulvett's Diabetic Compound, and can be had in Boston at Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., 20 Washington St.

We desire every patient to write us who is not getting the most improvement by the third week. Always state age. Address Pulvett Co., Jno. J. Fulton Co., 212 First St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

EITHER ?

Nearly every day you will hear a prolonged discussion as to how "either" is pronounced.

It may be pronounced Ether or Ither but the former is preferred.

So, when next you hear this word being discussed, you will be better posted. You can say Ether and let the other man say Ither, knowing all the time that Either is correct.

Webster's Condensed Dictionary settles all little disputes of this kind. You should own one of these books.

In another column of today's American you may learn how to do so at a nominal cost.

BANKERS GO ON $1,000,000 TRIP

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. A new mark in transcontinental travel will be set a number of bankers who leave here on four special trains late this afternoon for Los Angeles to attend the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, which will open on October 3. Many of the bankers are accompanied by their wives and families. The trains start over the New York Central lines, seven cords will be traveled over before the journey is done. The trip will cost $1,000,00. The specials will be locomotives.

TRENTINE IN LIGHT OPERA

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Perlie Eaunt Trentine, the Italian soprano who is one of the new sensations in Oscar Hammerstein's former Grand opera company whom he has retained for use in other productions, is to be heard in comic opera. She is rehearsing for "Naughty Marietta," the work which Mrs. Rida Johnson Young and Victor Herbert have arranged for her.

Emma Trentini is known by the pet name of "The Little Devil," which Emma Melby gave her after she had taken one of the woman smuggler roles in "Carmen." By this name Metha meant to describe the fire in singer's spicy and piquante personality.

"The music of the new piece is so difficult," she said, "all very high, but Mr. Herbert says he will change it later if I want. It is very hard to sing seven pieces a week one very high part. Also to have six songs and a great deal to do in the ensemble numbers. It is pretty and easy for me to remember—I know it already, but very high!"

When Mr. Hammerstein tells me that he wants me to sing in comic opera, I cry. I cry for two days. I did not want to. I said no, that I would rather sing anything in grand opera. But it made no use, he said, it would be better. So said everybody else. They all said it would be better, that I was for comic opera."

RETIRED SEA CAPTAIN HANGS SELF TO TREE

After carrying a small rope in his pocket for several weeks, Captain Isaac B. Goodwin, seventy-one years old, of No. 283 Pleasant street, Malden, used the slender cord for its intended purpose. He hung himself to a tree in Middlesex Fells. Captain Goodwin was a retired mariner. He had been despondent as a result of dyspeptic trouble and a few weeks ago attempted to drown himself in Spy Pond. His body was found by three young men. Deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Mary Saul of Salem.

CLOSE GREAT BOSTON PRIMARY CAMPAIGN

KELIHER IS APPROVED BY MERCHANTS

President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Chamber of Commerce, emphasizing the fact that he expressed his personal and not official views, declared today that he voiced the sentiment of business and commercial Boston when he urged the re-election of Congressman John A. Keliher. Said Mr. Rothwell:

"I believe Mr. Keliher has been an exceptionally able and useful congressman. I know he has been of very great help in various matters that the business interests of the city have had to bring to the attention of the departments, or before the Congress, at Washington.

"Congressman Keliher was decidedly helpful in the matter of the new Customs House; in securing the appropriation and getting a location for the new Appraisers' Stores, in hearing the new Immigration Station in East Boston; and he was very helpful in securing the passage through the House of the Works Factory bill."

Proved Able and Willing.

"We have found him not only able to help, but willing and anxious to be helpful. We also found that he is decidedly influential in Washington, and that one whose opinion is sought and whose judgment is given consideration.

"I feel that it would be a very serious mistake, so far as the commercial interests of Boston are concerned, if Mr. Keliher were to be replaced by a new and untried man. The great advantage that other States have in Washington is that, having found able men, they keep them on the job as long as they are willing to serve.

"Even allowing equal ability on the part of a new man, he could not possibly accomplish as much for the interests as a member who has been there several sessions, who has secured important positions on committees, and who has a wide acquaintanceship with the leaders of his party in the House.—Statement by Bernard J. Rothwell, president of Chamber of Commerce.

ROTHWELL'S TRIBUTE TO KELIHER'S WORTH AS A CONGRESSMAN

I feel that it would be a very serious mistake, so far as the commercial interests of Boston are concerned, if Mr. Keliher were to be replaced by a new and untried man. The great advantage that other States have in Washington is that, having found able men, they keep them on the job as long as they are willing to serve.

Even allowing equal ability on the part of a new man, he could not possibly accomplish as much for his constituents as a member who has been there several sessions, who has secured important positions on committees, and who has a wide acquaintanceship with the leaders of his party in the House.—Statement by Bernard J. Rothwell, president of Chamber of Commerce.

CURLEY TELLS HIS POLICIES

Councillor James M. Curley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Tenth District, made an open-air rally at A and Melcher streets, South Boston, at noon today, saying in part: "The supremacy of Republican rule is maintained only a continuance of the heavy burden under which our people are suffering and which Mr. O'Connell, by his voting record of March 15, 1909, was most ready and willing to indorse.

"I stand pledged to a policy for the enactment of wise laws which will give our people some means of relief from the merciless exactions of commercial pirates, who every day rob the people by extortion the charges in the cost of those necessities which go to men and his family can live without.

"My opponent Mr. McNary still stands as a candidate without an issue and represents nothing but the personification of selfish home as well illustrated in the past.

"The Democracy demands the service of every man who is loyal to its cause and must provide those who have proven failures, and who have absolutely nothing to offer but a record of broken promises, obligations unfulfilled and honest service in behalf of the people turned down for the promotion of self interests.

CAVANAGH RALLY.

Representative James F. Cavanagh of Everett, Republican candidate for renomination, holds a rally tomorrow night in Whittier Hall, Everett square. Representatives Norman H. White of Brookline and James H. Knight of Jamaica Plain and Former Representative H. Heath Newton of Everett will be among the speakers. Cavanagh was one of the leaders in last year's Legislature. He was a member of the special committee which investigated the Southbridge Savings Bank.

16 O'CONNELL TALKS TONIGHT IN THE WIND-UP

Joseph F. O'Connell will close his campaign for renomination in the Tenth Congressional District tonight with 16 meetings during which he will speak at sixteen meetings. At the close of the tour Congressman O'Connell will be guest of honor in his home ward by the members of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Ward 20.

Here is the schedule of rallies: 7:30 o'clock, St. Mary's Hall, West Quincy; 7:30 o'clock, Peabody square, Ashmont; 8 o'clock, Adams street and Dorchester avenue, Fields Corner; 8:10 o'clock, Savin Hill avenue and Dorchester avenue, Fields corner; 8:20 o'clock, Washington and Ericsson streets, Dorchester; 8:30 o'clock, Blue Hill and Lawrence avenues; 8:40 o'clock, Blue Hill avenue and Dudley streets; 8:5 o'clock, Dorchester and Everett avenues; 9:05 o'clock, Andrews square; 9:20 o'clock, Everett, near the site of Odd Fellows' Hall; 9:40 o'clock, Ninth and Lark streets; 9:50 o'clock, Broadway and Dorchester streets; 10 o'clock, Mercer and Ninth streets; 10:20 o'clock, Flood square; 10:50 o'clock, Broadway and Dorchester streets.

GIBLIN HOLDS BIG MEETING AT DOCK

At a noon rally today at the Cunard wharf, East Boston, Thomas J. Giblin addressed longshoremen and laborers on the water front. He said: "I entered this campaign to uphold East Boston. Keliher is my leading opponent. Murray is out of the contest even with the Mayor's backing. The people have taken Murray's measure in this contest. He is a nerrand boy for the leaders. The people want a strong man in Congress, a man who will fight against the cold storage trusts and the food trusts who are using formaldehyde and benzoate of soda, both deadly drugs, in the food.

"Why should not the citizens of East Boston stand by me? The monuments to my work are public buildings, hospitals and gymnasiums which will be talked of when I am dead and gone. If you want more food, just prices, a bigger navy and improvement on the level go to the polls tomorrow with a strong heart and a clear conscience, and decide it by voting for Giblin even if upheld by paid lieutenants at the precinct booth."

SEMINARA WOULD ENLIST BOY SCOUTS

Joseph Seminara, candidate for a Democratic nomination for the House in Ward 9, announced today that if elected to the Legislature he will offer a bill to make the American Boy Scouts in the State a part of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. Under such a plan the present uniforms and their camping expenses would be borne by the State.

21 COLLINS SPEECHES.

Edward F. Collins, who is making a strong fight in the Third Councillor District for the Governor's Council, will cover his district to-day by a tour of twenty-one speeches. On Saturday he spoke before thousands in his addresses and to-day he will end his tour by speaking before the Teamsters and Freight Handlers' Union.

FORMER SENATOR SULLIVAN, IN RACE FOR COUNCILLOR

RICHARD SULLIVAN

MANY VOTERS HEAR SULLIVAN

Former State Senator Richard Sullivan today spoke in Wards 9, 12, 17, 18, 19 and 22 in a final appeal to the voters for the Democratic nomination for the Governor's Council in the Tuled District. He said that he felt confident the figures would show him a winner by about three thousand.

Mr. Sullivan, who has served in both branches of the old city government and in both branches of the State government, bases his claim for preference over the other candidates first for his advocacy of home rule for cities, second because he was prominent to do his utmost for the calling of a constitutional convention, and thirdly because he deserves the nomination for services rendered to the party.

In urging the necessity of a constitutional convention Mr. Sullivan recalls that this State has not held such a thing since 1853, and that every State in the Union has been so long without changing its constitution, and Mr. Sullivan believes this State certainly needs to make some changes.

O'CONNELL TALKS ON COTTON TARIFF

Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell addressed a large gathering of workingmen at noon rally today at the Thomas A. Elson yards in Dorchester avenue. He said, in part:

"The Republican party was pledged to a reduction of the tariff, but cotton goods are higher than they ever were. There is no question that Senator Aldrich manipulated the cotton schedule for the benefit of the cotton mills of New England. To-day the cotton mills are paying enormous dividends, while the operatives are only getting on an average of $7.20 a week. There was no need of high protection as far as the capital invested was concerned, and inasmuch as the salary of the operatives has not been increased, it is evident that the tariff jugglery was not in favor of the working men.

"Cotton could be reduced in price 100 per cent, and still leave the mill owners a reasonable profit. I have given this schedule close attention and I intend to make a spec at effort to see that the rates on cotton cloth in all its forms is reduced in the next Congress."

KELIHER DISCUSSES PURE FOOD WORK

At a rally held at noon today at the Hoosac Tunnel docks, Charlestown, Congressman Keliher said:

"So far as my position on pure food is concerned, I wish to say that there has been a steady decrease in the death rate of Boston since I entered Congress.

"There has been a single conviction for violation of the Pure Food law by the U. S. authorities since the national law was passed. All the prosecutions have been under the best pure food law in the world—the Massachusetts pure food law which I voted to uphold in Congress.

"I repeat that in 1902 the deaths in Boston numbered 2,082 while last year they totaled but 1,688, so that all talk about the increased death rate is groundless."

75 SHAKEN UP IN CRASH AT MALDEN

Seventy-five passengers were given a severe shaking up shortly after 8 o'clock this morning in a rear-end collision of two semi-convertible electric cars, on Pleasant street near Highland avenue, Malden. Several hundred people were delayed on their way to work during the tieup in traffic that resulted, lasting half an hour.

A CLOSING WORD TO THE VOTERS OF THE TENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

The Congressional election of 1910 is to determine the greatest economic issue known in this country in the past decade—the reduction of the prevailing high cost of living by a wise revision of the tariff.

To this constructive legislation I stand committed as an earnest advocate, and upon my solemn oath pledge a constant allegiance.

My opponents have upon great issues of public welfare proved servile to corporation interests in the past.

Will the leopard change his spots?

NOTES OF POLITICAL DOINGS

CALENDAR.

TO-DAY, and every day before 3 p. m.—Leave a note at the BOSTON AMERICAN office, addressed to "Political Editor," telling where your rallies are to be held the following day.

TO-DAY—Registration of voters at Old Court House, rear of City Hall, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

TO-NIGHT—Rallies. Rallies. More Rallies.

TO-MORROW—Joint primaries in all cities and towns which have adopted the Lace caucus act. Caucuses of all parties in Suffolk County. Democratic caucuses in all cities and towns.

WEDNESDAY—Republican caucuses in cities and towns outside Suffolk County which have not adopted the Lace caucus act.

OCTOBER 6—Democratic convention in Faneuil Hall. Republican convention in Tremont Temple.

OCTOBER 19—Registration for State election ends at 10 p. m.

NOVEMBER 8—State election.

* * *

Vote early, not often.

* * *

Almost any one of us may ride in an automobile to-morrow.

* * *

Interested in what's doing at the polls? Read all editions of to-morrow's BOSTON AMERICAN. Complete returns in them. The AMERICAN always has them on the street first.

* * *

What's that? How did Tom Giblin's voice last for all those rallies? You evidently have never heard that Tom was an auctioneer.

* * *

The voters of Ward 24 owe a lot to Harry Alcock for issuing that circular with the roll-call records for this year of the district's three Representatives.

* * *

The several scraps in and around Boston have rather put the Galvin-Wilcutt fight in the Tenth district in the shade. But it is an interesting fight, nevertheless.

* * *

* * *

Nine,—count 'em,—nine open-air rallies for Councilman Curley to-night. Mount Vernon street and Dorchester avenue, 6; Andrew square, 9:15; Telegraph and Dorchester streets, 6:30; Dorchester street and Broadway, 9:45; F and Broadway, 10; E and Broadway, 10:10; D and Broadway, 10:20; B and Broadway, 10:30; A and Fourth, 11.

* * *

Speaker Walker offered Representative Washburn of Worcester, the chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee, which means the Republican floor leadership of the House, and Mr. Washburn declined the offer, according to a document circulated by the Washburn campaign committee.

* * *

The Callahan faction in Ward 9, being more friendly with the administration, holds forth in the Old Franklin School-house to-night. Congressman Keliher and his supporters have engaged Washington Hall, No. 995 Washington street. Councilman John J. Attridge will preside at the latter rally.

* * *

Daniel L. Connolly, new as a candidate for the office, but a seasoned politician, is one of the speakers in the Old Franklin Schoolhouse to-night. Former Representative Joseph Leonard and Former Councilman John Fetsch are scheduled to speak in Washington Hall.

* * *

Whirlwind tours of the Ninth district to-night for candidates Keliher, Shaw, Murray, Monahan and Giblin.

* * *

Major Robert Cowley of Lowell, prominent in the Douglas days, has appeared at the helm of the Hamlin boom for first place on the Democratic nomination for Governor.

* * *

* * *

Executive committee of the Democratic State Committee meets Wednesday at headquarters, No. 15 Beacon street. A permanent chairman, temporary chairman of members of a Committee on Resolutions to draft the platform will be chosen. Looks like John H. Thayer of Worcester, for permanent chairman, Representative William O. D'Brien of Boston, for temporary chairman, and either Louis B. Brandeis or Harry H. Pratt for chairman of Resolutions.

* * *

* * *

"Sandy" Chapman is given a big rally by his workers over in Cambridge, in his attitude Hall, this evening. He will visit several rallies in Charlestown and East Boston.

* * *

It takes more than smoke from a big black cigar to knock out Henry Cabot Lodge. The senior Senator is again on the job and the Republican State Committee has been proffered his services on the stump this fall, and the offer includes a promise to carry the tariff fight of the G. O. P. into every county of the State. Senator Lodge will be heard on the stump during this campaign more than ever before in a score of years. He will speak in every county of the State.

* * *

Next week, and just after the primaries, the State committees will get a move on for the Republicans will have plenty of meetings of the full committee and meetings of the executive committee. The Democrats will have a meeting of their executive committee only. The Democratic policy of late years declares that the usefulness of the ordinary State committee man consists only in attending the annual meeting for organization and the "nightheforce" convention meeting at some hotel. While the Republicans have their convention officers all selected, the Democrats have done nothing in regard to theirs.

* * *

Here's one "sqin," the chaps who are boiling down the congressional seats, and though it sounds like Lew Dockstader, its origin is laid up to a Curleyite, a McNarylte or a Finiganite.

"Say," asks one of the many street interlocutors, "you had Keliher, O'Connell and Peters are hard o' hearing."

"They're not" is the immediate answer. "Oh, yes, they must be," replied the interlocutor, "they were even so close to a Cannon over a year ago, and there's only getting the report now."

* * *

Wow, but won't there be a hot old time with the City Hall time clock of the whirling, furious bingt, if "Joe" O'Connell is beaten in the Tenth district and if "Jack" Keliher is thrown down in the Ninth.

* * *

Former Senator Charles S. Sullivan charges that Representative Dave Shaw would be driven a back-seat if it weren't for Judge Corbett. The Shaw men say that Corbett, Sullivan and their congressional candidate, Billy Murray, will regret that statement.

* * *

Did you notice that charge by George Monahan? That Billy Murray took $600 of his, Monahan's, money to pay Monahan workers, and then jumped to Rannelev Lakes for a month's vacation, explaining later that he had lost the money. Just think of what that $600 would have done for a lot of people.

* * *

The Lomasney forces in Ward 8 made a mistake in saying that Keliher should not be supported on the ground that he is "a friend of Storrow's." Keliher is going to get a lot of votes in Ward 8 for that very reason.

* * *

Big rally in Revere Town Hall to-night for Representative William M. Robinson, candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator in the First Suffolk District. "I have been a fighting political marching," says Billy, "and I have it whipped to a frazzle."

* * *

O'Connor rallies to-night: 7:45 p. m., Blue Hill avenue and Dove street; 8:15, Dorchester avenue and Mount Vernon street; 8:30, Andrew square, Dorchester and Telegraph streets, 8:45; Eighth and I streets, 9:15, Flood square, 9:30, Broadway and Dorchester street; 9:45, Broadway and D street; 10, Broadway and G street.

JOHN A. KELIHER

Has Made Good in Congress. Do You Wish to Defeat Him With a Man of This Record?

MURRAY, The Enemy of Union Labor

THE CAMPAIGN CIRCULAR ISSUED BY WILLIAM F. MURRAY AND SIGNED BY HIMSELF WAS PRINTED IN A SCAB SHOP, "PROVING HIS DISREGARD OF UNION LABOR.

MURRAY, The Unfaithful Public Servant

There were 65 roll calls in the House of Representatives in 1907. Murray was absent from ten, all during the closing days of the session, when the biggest measures were considered.

There were 84 roll calls in the House during 1908. Murray was absent from 15. Most of his absences were again during the closing days.

MURRAY, The Friend of the Corporations

April 3, 1907—Voted For the Corporations and Against the People on a bill to aid cities and towns to acquire their own lighting plants. (See page 604 of the Official Journal of the House of Representatives for 1907.)

April 5, 1907—Voted For the street railways and Against the People on a bill to properly regulate street railways, which are common carriers of the people. (See page 686.)

May 9, 1907—Voted For the Boston Elevated and Against the People on the Joint Tracks Bill. (See page 942.)

June 25, 1907—Deserted the People and helped the New Haven Railroad by being absent on Representative White's amendment to save the railroad control bill take effect at once.

MURRAY, The Enemy of Home Rule

April 14, 1908—Absent and not voting on bill to place listing of voters in Boston under assessors, where it formerly was and where it belongs—a real home rule measure.

June 5, 1908—Again absent and not voting when the above measure was up for passage over acting Governor's veto.

MURRAY, The Opponent of Lower Taxes

May 2, 1907—Voted against taxing residential property of Colleges and Universities. This bill would provide a big reduction in Boston's tax rate. (See page 1063.)

May 22, 1908—Absent and not voting on Representative McCarthy's bill to give the franchise taxes of business corporations to the cities and towns in which they do business. This bill has been enacted into law. It means an additional income of $600,000 annually for the City of Boston and a considerable reduction to the City's tax rate.

MURRAY, The Enemy of the War Veterans

June 12, 1907—Absent and not voting on passing over Governor's veto the Schofield Bounty Bill for veteran soldiers and sailors. (See page 1204 of the Journal.)

March 25, 1908—Absent, but paired, on the Pay bill to authorize the City of Boston to retire on pensions employees who are veterans of the Civil or Spanish Wars. (See page 474.) For, if present.

April 1, 1908—Absent, but paired, on bill allowing all cities and towns to do what the last mentioned bill authorized Boston to do. (See page 740.)

MURRAY, The Enemy of Old Age Pensions

May 21, 1907—Absent, and not voting on a bill to provide for an investigation of old age pensions and for the establishment of old age pensions in Massachusetts. This bill was defeated by the narrow margin of 9 votes. Murray and 61 others deserted, and were absent. Murray's vote and the votes of 9 others would have passed the bill.

VOTE FOR

LOOK UP JUST ONE WORD IN ANY GOOD DICTIONARY!

The next time you come into contact with a Good Dictionary, open it and look at the first word that strikes your eye.

No matter how familiar you may be with the word, you will learn something new about it. If it should happen to be a word with which you were not familiar, you will have added a new word to your vocabulary.

After you have learned the correct pronunciation of the word—where it originated—what it means—and what part of speech it is, gramatically, you will surprise yourself by glancing at the next word and the next, and studying them in the same way.

Using a Good Dictionary is a fascinating pastime, and using it to its fullest value is a liberal education.

One thing must be kept in mind, always, about dictionaries—and that is "the better the dictionary the greater the value to a student."

For the size of it—for the clearness of type—for the entire scope of it—for the quality of paper and binding in its make-up—there is no better dictionary in the entire field of lexicography than Webster's Condensed Dictionary.

The enormous success attending the distribution of these valuable books among the readers of the American has made necessary a further stupendous order with the great publishing house that has made the name Noah Webster famous the world over.

Nobody can own a better dictionary than this one. With one of these books at hand you are fortified with the final authority on English Language.

These books can be had for a little trouble—cutting 7 coupons on 7 consecutive days from the American—daily and Sunday—and a small bonus to cover the actual cost of printing and binding.

No. 1—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete in every way—bound in fine cloth 7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 35 cents.

No. 2—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete in every way—bound in flexible leather—7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 65 cents.

No. 3—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete and amplified with charts and colored maps—bound in full black morocco—7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 95 cents.

Dictionary Coupons will be found on Page 2 of the Daily and Sunday American. You can start a set of seven any time—the set must contain 7 coupons cut on 7 consecutive days.

Dictionaries will be sent by mail on receipt of full set of coupons and bonus—together with 15 cents to pay postage.

MISS TORREY, PLEASE, NOT 'AUNT DELIA'

MILLBURY, Sept. 26.—Miss Delia Torrey, aunt to President Taft, will be eighty-five years old next Friday. She is planning no formal observance of the day. She will probably visit friends in Newburyport, Mrs. E. A. Grosvenor, wife of President Grosvenor of Amherst, may accompany her on the trip. Good health remains to Miss Torrey. She said to-day:

"Yes, my health is good and I enjoy life as much as ever. I think the past Summer was one of the most pleasant of my life."

The fact that the Summer White House is at Beverly is relished by Miss Torrey. It enables her to see her favorite nephew, the President, more often. She spent to-days with the Taft family in Beverly. The President has been to Millbury twice this Summer, so she has seen quite a bit of "Will," as she calls him.

Miss Torrey objects to be called "Aunt Delia." "I do not like it," she says. "I am no 'Aunt Delia' to the entire county. I would much rather have the newspapers call me Miss Torrey."

WOMAN FOUNDER OF HOSPITAL IS DEAD

Dr. Annie Selee, one of the oldest woman physicians in Massachusetts and founder of the Boston Homeopathic Hospital, is dead at her home in Melrose from injuries received in a recent fall on the eighty-first birthday of her husband, Nathan R. Selee. She was seventy-seven years old, a native of Granby, Ct. After graduating in Wesleyan College and Boston University she was admitted to practice. She is survived by her husband, a son, Channing R. Selee, and a daughter, wife of the Rev. John D. Pickles.

GRAHAME-WHITE PLANS FLIGHT OVER GOTHAM

Wealthy Boston aviation enthusiasts stand ready to offer a big cash prize if Grahame-White will attempt a flight from this city to New York. The project has been discussed only informally as yet by the famous English aviator, but there is reason to think that determined efforts will be made within the next few days to definitely arrange an attempt of the feat.

Grahame-White, after his visit to New York, was impressed with the possibilities of flying over New York city. He said to-day, "I see no reason why a man could not fly over New York city from the Connecticut side to the Jersey side. It is no more dangerous flying over a city than mendownland provided you rise high enough. I think I may attempt the flight. If I do I will rise to such a height that if anything goes wrong with my engines I can glide slowly and, making a big angle in the descent land on the Jersey side of the city."

Grahame-White expects to receive four new machines, two Bleriots and two Farmans within a few days. It is understood that they have been bought through his American enthusiasts. The machines are shipped in Grahame-White's name, and he declines to say to whom they will be sold.

To-day he is directing his assistants in packing the Bleriot and Farman used at the Atlantic field. The Farman will be shipped to Brockton on Wednesday, and the Bleriot will go to New York the same day.

It was rumored about the Hotel Touraine last night that W. Starling Burgess will move a big part of his Plum Island workshop to the Squantum field and will conduct future experiments from this station. Charles Fuselli, it is scheduled to give an exhibition to-morrow at the Riverside recreation grounds.

ANIMALOGUES

Vinegar Sours Cow's Milk.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Sept. 26.—Great was the mystification of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Marks of Anaheim street and California avenue when they found that milk which was given by their cow, a fine Jersey, was sour—sour just as if it went into the bucket from honey herself. A veterinary was called in. With the cleverness of a Yankee he considered that Mr. Marks had knocked the head off an old vinegar barrel and filled that with water for the cow. The vinegar barrel had soured the milk.

Wheels Enemy to Feast.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—For the first time since monkey dinners became the fad at the Bronx Zoo five chimpanzees and an orang entertained at the pavilion platform. All except one wore overalls and sweaters. This was "Mog." He was brought to the feast in a baby carriage, wheeled by his old enemy "Baldy," who broke his leg a couple of months ago.

Lions Steals Back Her Young.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Sept. 26.—The mother of two lion cubs recently trapped in Crystal Park and taken home for pets by Jack Gillespie regained her offspring and disappeared with them. Gillespie captured the cubs three days ago, and when he went to feed them he found that they had disappeared.

Kill Magistrate's Ducks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—City Magistrate Robert C. Cornell has engaged private detectives to find out who entered his poultry house at Bayside, L. I., and wrung the necks of slashed the fat ducks. A few months ago sixty-five chickens were stolen from the poultry house.

St. Bernard Bites Three.

WAVERLY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Rex, a powerfully built and pedigreed St. Bernard dog, became suddenly mad and bit two men and an eleven-year-old girl before he was killed. The dog, valued at $800, had been purchased a week ago by Smith, and was supposed to be very gentle.

Takes Hennery to Sea.

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., Sept. 26.—So determined is E. H. Carlisle that fifty Rhode Island Red chicks he possesses shall have proper care for the next few months that he is arranging to take them with him on his cruise to Bermuda in a twenty-foot catboat.

ALPHA OUTING DANCE.

Everything is in readiness for the annual dance of the Alpha Outing Club, an organization of young men, which will be held in Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, this evening. Features will be a "Whistling" waltz and vaudeville show. The committee of arrangements is headed by President Frederick T. Keefe.

SIX ARMED BANDITS HOLD UP STREET CAR

ST. PAUL, Sept. 26.—Six armed bandits looted a crowded interurban street car, flourishing knives and guns in the faces of the passengers, fought their way to the rear of the car and then made their escape in broad daylight. The passengers assessed their losses later at $180.

LOSE FISH IN STORM.

The schooner Josephine de Costa, Captain Marion Perri, tied up at T wharf today. Captain Perri says that they were caught in a sudden squall last Saturday afternoon while twenty of the crew were out in the dories, and he and the two men on the vessel had difficulty in picking them up. The dories were forced to abandon their fish and gear. The loss is put at $400.

MAURETANIA FAILS TO SMASH RECORD

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 26.—After breaking the westward Atlantic voyage for speed, the great Cunard liner Mauretania arrived from New York to-day, having tried to establish a new eastward record as well. Owing to storms the vessel was barely able to maintain her schedule without a thought of breaking records.

HELD FOR BOAT THEFT.

For stealing the fittings of the motor boat Victorine, owned by Frank M. Rogers of South Boston, amounting to $125, on September 11, Edward E. Rhesman of No. 20 Windemere road, Dorchester and Thomas F. O'Neil of East Eighth street, South Boston, were arraigned before Judge Fulton in South Boston Court to-day and held in $500 for the Grand Jury.

MORGAN RETURNS FROM EUROPE

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. J. Pierpont Morgan has returned from his annual trip to Europe with his eldest son, J. S. Morgan, Jr., on the liner Baltic. Two daughters, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee and Mrs. Willis Fierson Hamilton, with a number of grandchildren met him at Quarantine aboard the Morgan yacht Corsair.

The Chicago Cubs, former world's champions and now pennant winners in the National League battle, play the first of a series of four games with the Doves today.

The game will give Boston fans a chance to compare the respective chances of the Cubs and the Athletics in the coming world's championship series.

While the most ardent Dove supporter hardly expects to see Lake's outfit get away with today's game, the fans turn out to get a line on the working of the smooth baseball machine from the Windy City, with the idea in view of getting down a little money on the result of the world's series, either on the short or long end, as their convictions dictate.

Out West the Cubs are big favorites over the Athletics, but the showing of the Philadelphia outfit in this city has left an awful good impression, and the Cubs will have to show some more baseball to convince the local following of the game that they have anything on the American League pennant winners.

In paper the Cubs seem to have a little the best of the Athletics, but the dope has been upset so often that people are first losing faith in it, and are adopting other means of being advertised which way to place their money.

Size Up Both Teams.

The Athletics on their last trip to this city cleaned up the entire series with the Red Sox, and when they departed said that as an American league team would be the world's champions this year, and ever since then Boston fans have been wondering if they were not right. Today they will have a chance to settle the question in their own minds. The series which starts today will wind up the last eastern trip of the clubs in the Western division of the National League, for after the Cubs bid adieu to the city the Eastern teams come here to bring the baseball season of 1910 to a close.

The compliment of the Cub team, Boston fans are well acquainted with as many a time they have seen this great trend send the Doves down to defeat up at the old South End lot, and all the bunch who have made the Chicago outfit the most feared team in the National League, will be seen at their old positions when the umpire calls "Play ball" today.

King and Archer, the two catchers who don't have to take their hats off to any other hookstops in the business; Chance, Evers, Steinfeldt and Tinker, the wonderful infield that was responsible for digesting and the outfield comprised of Schulte and Hofman, who may be easily called the best of any team playing organized baseball, will be in the game action to-day, in their old positions.

There will come in for a lot of attention during the game to-day, but the greatest interest is centered in King Cole, the young pitching phenom, from the Coast, who will probably be the mainstay of the Cubs in the box against the Athletics. Boston baseball fans have seen much chance to size him up, like to one of the latest additions to the club pitching department, and has been touted all along the route as a world-beater. His work so far this year does not exactly bear out this, and Boston fans are hoping he will be Chance's undoing when it comes to the world's champs in the opening game to-day.

Chance is not making any bones about the fact that he will depend a great deal on this youngster in the coming world's series, and that the game performed under the criterion his confidence is not misplaced. If only remains to be seen whether or not the youngster can maintain his courage, confidence and cunning under the strain attending a world's championship contest and all it brings in its train.

The Chicago Cubs are scheduled to play a whole week after the close of the American League season, so that the series will be played at Chicago, October 9, 10, 12 and 13. The National commission met in session at Cincinnati October 1 and decide when the games for the world's championship shall be played.

Start Series Oct. 15?

If it suits the Chicago & South game, scheduled for October 15, brought forward to the 11th, an open date, it will give the champions a chance to start the post-season series on Saturday, October 15, which looks like fair play to the American League champions, as the weather is anything but favorable for baseball in the Windy City any later.

The chances are that Saturday and Sunday games will be played at Chicago, and that then with an open day the clubs will go to Philadelphia for three games. If either club has not won four games by this time the other will probably return to Chicago to settle it.

There is a unusual interest in the big series this fall, and reports from Philadelphia and Chicago show a great demand for seats. A large number of New Englanders will go to Philadelphia to see the games, and not a few will be at the opening game at Chicago.

Picks Cubs to Win.

As both teams will be in a position to rest up their men and round up the star performers, they should toe the mark in the best condition of any teams which have played in this series. Neither club has any excuse ready in handing the right prize to baseball. National League sympathizers mostly pick the Cubs on general principles and past performances, but that means little.

After losing two games out of three to the Tigers, the Red Sox hastened to Cleveland, and the Naps are due for a punishing to-day. The Sox have always been able to hand it out to the Naps fairly far and have found the Ohio men a fairly easy proposition. The only victories Cleveland has been able to pull off have been few and far between.

JOHNSON SAYS ATHLETICS WILL WHIP CUBS FOR WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP

By BAN JOHNSON.

President American League.

The Athletics will whip the Cubs in the world's series. It has been my belief that the National League prolonged its schedule in order to get out of playing the world's series.

But the series will be played.

The Athletics will beat the Cubs for the world's pennant. I think it is time for our league to win the highest honors in baseball. There was considerable feeling in our own organization against playing the winner of its three successive failures to win the world's championship. For that reason most of the clubs will be glad to see Connie Mack's team make the fight against the National League champions.

Mack has a staff of great pitchers, Coombs, Plank and Bender are all fully capable of holding their own against the crack batters of the National League. Morgan, who didn't show much in St. Louis, is one of the great pitchers in baseball, I confess.

Connie Mack is a great field general. Frank Chance, if his team wins the National League pennant, will more than find his equal in Mack. Chance is a great pinch hitter and Mack knows all that. Mack and Mack know I think Mack is one of the greatest baseball men of our time. If he gets the world's championship fight with his team in good condition he will win the series.

By THOMAS J. LYNCH.

President National League.

I believe, on account of my official position as president of the National League that I should offer no comment at this time on the outcome of the world's series.

8,000 SEE CLARKE WIN 5-MILE RACE

NEWARK, Sept. 26.—John Clarke, the Australian, and Frank L. Kramer, American champion, met in a five-mile match race behind pace at the Vailsburg cycle track and the Australian won by four inches.

The deciding race for the 1910 American amateur championship was also run and the events were witnessed by more than 8,000 persons, the largest crowd of the season.

$150 in Prizes for Best Forecasts of Great World Series

DO you want $150?

You're interested in the world's championship series? Certainly.

The Philadelphia Athletics have won the pennant in the American League. The Chicago Cubs are sure of winning the pennant in the National League. These two teams will play for the championship of the world.

The Boston American will give $150 in prizes to 54 of its readers who most accurately forecast the results of that contest.

All you have to do is think it out. It costs nothing. You all know about how a team given a $10,000 annual salary at Readville for the two and three year old trotters and pacers, said this morning. Complaint was lodged with the postal authorities at Washington that a Western publication in promoting and securing entries for its annual Futurity had made an arrangement with the publication of the Postoffice Department ruling seems inevitable, if the law is to be made iron-clad against all turf journals. The matter has been placed in the hands of United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey and I have no misgivings as to the final result.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

Estimate the score of each team in each game on the accompanying blank and mail to the WORLD'S SERIES EDITOR. Boston American, P. O. box No. 227, Boston. The contest ends at noon on the day the first game is played. No guesses will be considered that are postmarked afternoon of the day of the first game. There are less than three weeks to do your guessing.

Her Hair

Was Thin, so She Couldn't Wear a Large Hat.

It's a big problem nowadays for a woman to get her hair on which to wear a fashionable "rat." If all women with thin, faded, falling hair would do as Mrs. J. S. Fisher, of Spruce St., Philadelphia, did, they'd soon be happy. Read what she says:

"I was never able to wear a large hat until now. The comb has thickened my hair and is doing a great deal for me. I am only too pleased to be one of the multitude to praise Lorriner's Excelsior Hair Tonic."

Get Lorriner's Excelsior Hair Tonic at Riker-Jaynes or of your nearest druggist, and get it while there's still time to improve and save your hair.

FUTURITY RACES ARE LOTTERIES

As a thunderclap from a clear sky comes to the horsemen of the country the announcement by the Postoffice Department at Washington in one of the most extraordinary rullings known in many years that the futurity races promoted by the turf journals of the country, and which are among the most important early features upon the light harness race tracks are a gilt enterprise or lottery, and that some of the publications exploiting the events may be barred from the mails.

T. Lee Quimby, treasurer of the American Horse Breeder of this city, who since 1903 has given a $10,000 annual futurity at Readville for the two and three year old trotters and pacers, said this morning: "Complaint was lodged with the postal authorities at Washington that a Western publication in promoting and securing entries for its annual futurity had made an arrangement with the publication of the American Horse Breeder or other publications, who have refrained from the subscription clause, as stated, and such was my opinion after a conference with the authorities at Washington. A modification of the Postoffice Department ruling seems inevitable, if the law is to be made iron-clad against all turf journals. The matter has been placed in the hands of United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey and I have no misgivings as to the final result."

WANTED—LIVE YOUNG MEN FOR BIG CLUBS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26.—Baseball beckons to the young American and holds out lures of gold. And the young American is found willing. He cannot hit the speed demanded in baseball.

This view of the baseball situation, as managers are handling the 1911 pennants, is given by Manager Jack O'Connor of the Browns.

"I have $50,000 I will pay to fifteen capable young baseball players," he says. "To any man who will come to me for a month's trial now and a date out of that month pleases me, I will pay $1,000 down and $2,000 next season.

"I will pay $250 premium for a clever young ball player whom I can get for $1,500 cash, and will pay him at least $2,000 next year.

"Personally, I think the young American man is good merely as a model for ready-made tailors and pipe and cigarette makers.

"Whatever the reason I do not pretend to state. I do know that baseball has now, 200 vacant jobs at an average salary of $500 a month that can't be filled."

ROCHESTER LANDS EASTERN PENNANT

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Eastern League season has closed. Rochester, managed by John Gansell, wins the pennant for the second successive year, with Newark, piloted by Joe McGinnity, again second. Newark led until July, when, owing to weak pitching, Buster Morgan's Providence, which finished third last season, was last this year.

HARVARD SQUAD PUT THROUGH HARD DRILL FOR FIRST BIG GAME

By E. V. B. PARKE.

The Harvard football squad to-day began its second week of work on Soldiers Field with a light drill this morning in the rudiments of the game and a hard scrimmage this afternoon to smooth off the rough places on the varsity eleven for the game with Bates on Wednesday.

It is never customary for the Harvard team to hold a scrimmage the day before a game, so the team will probably go on the gridiron against the Maine team having had the advantage of but three scrimmages. Despite this handicap of lack of time to play together and develop real team work, the eleven seems to be in first-class shape and able to give a good account of itself, and whatever faults there may be in the aggregation the coaches will try to eliminate this afternoon.

The candidates with two exceptions, have come through the first week of practice in excellent condition. The men are in good physical condition and have also absorbed much football during the six days of two sessions each. They have hardened up most satisfactorily, and all but the two excepted are ready for any kind of a contest.

Two on Injured List.

The only injuries recorded at Harvard occurred in the scrimmage held on Friday and Saturday afternoons. In the former "Gag" Perkins, one of the most likely candidates for the centre position, wrenched his knee and will be out of the game for some time. His injury can hardly be called a new one, however, as he had trouble with the same knee last Fall, when water on the knee developed, and the member has not been ever strong since.

Hollister, an end on the freshmen last Fall, was hurt on Saturday while playing his position on the second team. He also, hap, however, was slight, and it is expected that he will be around in several days.

In former years a number of candidates were in the habit of dislocating their shoulders in falling on the ball, but Coach Haughton has taken good care of how the men went at this stunt, with the result that thus far no one has suffered a bruise.

It may be that the two weeks' outing the men enjoyed down Maine helped to harden them up to such a degree that they were less apt to be hurt. At all events the trip to Frazier's Island served to get the whole digestive organs into such good condition, special provisions having been made for their diet there, that none of them have been troubled with those intestinal troubles which usually bother the players after the first couple of weeks in Cambridge each Fall. The credit for this is due to Coach Haughton.

Practice in Stadium.

The scrimmaging this afternoon is likely to be held in the Stadium for the first time, for, as the grounds are now in the ideal condition. A little practice in catching punts was held for the backs and ends in the scrimmage Saturday afternoon, but to the scrimmage, to accustom them to the roar which will be totally different from that of the open field where they have been practicing.

When the varsity once gets into the schedule games the coaches will devote practice there for the rest of the season, and it is likely that on many occasions all candidates will be assembled while a little secret practice is held.

The use of fence at the open end of the Stadium is in place, and it will be an excellent place to spot opponents with. Coach Haughton lutors his charges in some new plays which will be sprung for the first time, with Wigglesworth seems to be the fairy godparent.

The skin tackle play, in which Corbett, the speedy freshman halfback is used to such good advantage, especially in the Yale game last year, will surely be one of the standbys, and with the good start which the Crimson Kids made in the play last year, with an additional season's coaching this year, he should do something spectacular in one of the larger games.

Develop Forward Pass.

The forward pass is still a thing of chance, for it has hardly been in existence long enough as yet through a thorough taming and mastering process. With the play being forgotten somewhat by the new rules, it may develop in a degree and prove productive of excellent as well as ground gaining results before the season is over.

The Harvard eleven has not yet accustomed itself to the position of this play, but the season is yet young and there is still plenty of time in which to develop a pair which will pull off the play in such wonderful style as did Captain "Hank" Fish, the all-American tackle, and Quarterback Corbett.

To judge from the first week's work of the Harvard candidates, Coach Haughton has a host of remarkable backfield material from which to choose a trio. Corbett, Campbell, H. C. Leslie, the Frothingham brothers and Graustein, by virtue of their clever exhibitions last week in the backfield, loom up as star possibilities. Despite the fact that Gardner has been running Team A, Wigglesworth should and probably will have the first choice at quarter when the team go against their opponents.

Again at the end of the line there is a quartet of ends which one could hardly desire better, with "Bud" Smith, Long "Dick" Lewis and "Dan" O'Flaherty all as candidates. It looks now as though Dan would be kept out for an end, and not tried for his old position at quarter.

The Crimson team while not particularly strong in the group of men out for tackle, still has a good bunch to choose from, with E. H. Leslie, Feitor of last year's freshmen team; Bush, the substitute to Captain Fish of the 1909 team, and Charlie Hannan, a new man on the squad, with a possibility that Captain Withington may shift to tackle from his former position of guard, should the tackles seem poorly looked after.

A strong, if not long, list of guards appear, with Fisher of the team last year, Blodgett of the second team, and Parmenter of the freshmen eleven, with possibly Wulsin or McGuire of the second squad. The centre of the line will be taken care of by P. D. Smith, Amory and Perkins, when he can safely return to the game.

JACK JOHNSON TO FIGHT TOM SAWYER

EASTPORT, Me., Sept. 26.—Young Jack Johnson, the Boston colored middleweight boxer, will have a six-round bout next Thursday evening with Tom Sawyer of Portland, who claims to be middleweight champion of Maine. Sawyer and he were early in the month and knocked out Henry Hall in the fourth round.

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper in Boston and over 200,000 more than the next highest evening paper, and over 75,000 more than all the other Boston evening papers combined. Circulation books open to all.

ELMER COLLINS WINS MATCH WITH MORAN

PASSAIC, N. J., Sept. 26.—Elmer Collins beat Jimmy Moran in a thrilling three heat motor-paced match race at the Clifton Stadium before 3,000 spectators. The pair rode to the tenth mile of the first heat in 1m. 10s., and finished with the throttles of the motors they were following thrown wide open.

No! Murrah, the above word doesn't mean that a man is growing fat. It has an entirely different meaning.

What it means can be determined by referring to Webster's Condensed Dictionary.

NAUGHTON SAYS GIVE LANG ANOTHER CHANCE

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

Close to the heels of the "popular decision" which accredited Al Kaufman with making a thorough expose of Bill Lang comes a bunch of individual opinions to the effect that the Australian was not worsted to the extent indicated. Some of the experts, in fact, are now saying that Lang did every bit as well as Kaufman.

It was ever thus in the case of decisionless boxing bouts, and ever will be. These things are like International doleful disputes, in which, no matter what the ruling, each party claims to have come through the "tribunaling" with the greater degree of bone and profit.

A longer fight between Lang and Kaufman is suggested, and it might be a good idea to send the men together in a contest calculated to furnish more decisive results. Meanwhile, there is no denying that Lang is generally regarded as a failure.

He is suffering in a way for the shortcomings of Bill Squires. After "Bosbter" made such a lamentably poor showing with one T. Burns it was argued that stage fright had robbed Squires of his dash and fighting intelligence, and that he might do immensely better on a second trial.

Lang Should Have a Chance.

He didn't improve when sent against Jack (Twin) Sullivan and Jim Flynn in turn. Now the sports are saying "It will be the same with Lang: it would be only a waste of time trying him out further."

This is rather rough on Lang, but it is the kind of reasoning that would have been looked for For Lang's sake, it is to be hoped he will be given other chances to show his mettle.

Writing of Lang and Squires brings memories of the old-time Australian heavyweights who came to this country, and impresses us with the fact that the land of Kangaroo is not developing high-class ringmen at present. It certainly is not sending forth any world beaters.

The question is often asked who of all the Australian heavies did the best work in the United States. The palm, beyond a doubt, must be awarded to Bob Fitzsimmons, but at the same time it is well to remember that he had more opportunities of showing his worth than any of the others.

Bob came to us a middleweight and stayed with us.

He worked forward gradually to the front ranks of his profession. He figured in some sensational encounters, and provided the ring going and fight reading public with more genuine entertainment than any ringman who flourished contemporaneously with him.

Peter Jackson was only with us for a brief season and he was probably a little past his prime as a ring athlete when he first came. He whipped George Godfrey, Patsy Cardiff and Joe McAuliffe without turning a hair, and he would have made things interesting for John L. Sullivan if Sullivan had given him the chance. Peter was too fond of London to remain long in this country, and London proved his undoing.

Slavin and Goddard Good Ones.

Frank Slavin was a typical Australian bruiser and Joe Goddard was another. Slavin did most of his fighting in England and Australia. He made brief visits to New York when in his prime, and gave samples of his prowess in short bouts there.

He was never much good after the gruelling he engaged in with Peter Jackson in England, and when he came to this country later to follow the fighting game his stamina was impaired, and he fell an easy victim to the third rate mob.

Goddard was a human bulldog and anything but a brilliant performer. He was poison to an opponent who was inferior to him in animal courage.

One of the clevenest of the Australian contingent was Jim Hall, but he did not make much headway on this side. Jim created a furore the night he was first tried out at the old California Club in San Francisco. His opponent was Alex Greggains, who was one of the best boxers among the Coast heavyweights at that time.

Hall made Greggains look like a dunce. He sparred on the crescendo principle, warming up with each round, and by the time the third round was over Greggains was completely bewildered. The club members were astounded at the tall Australian's cleverness and great things were predicted for Jim. Somehow he failed to make good.

BOUTS ON CARD FOR THIS WEEK

TO-NIGHT—Al Kaufman vs. Al Kubiak, Baltimore; Con O'Kelly vs. Bob Moha, Syracuse, N. Y.; Leach Cross vs. Cy Smith, New York; Ben Kerns vs. Kid Sullivan, Albany, N. Y.; Johnny Krause vs. Tommy Howell, Philadelphia.

TUESDAY—Matty Baldwin vs. Battling Hurley, A. J. Duffy vs. Young Redman, Young Rothwell vs. Tommy Flanagan, Joe Eagan vs. Young Reardon, Armory A. WEDNESDAY—(seven Mouse vs. Pal Moore, Philadelphia; Charley Seiger vs. Maurice Lemoine, Young Rotman vs. Young O'Neil, Worcester; Dary Kean vs. Paddy Sullivan, New York.

THURSDAY—Ad Wolgast vs. Tommy Garry, Fon du Lac, Wis.; Johnny Kilbane vs. Benny Kaufmann, Pittsburg; Eddie Hoppy vs. Joe Grim, Philadelphia; Young Jack Johnson vs. Tom Harper, Bridgeport, Me.

FRIDAY—Harry Lewis vs. Young Loughery, Philadelphia; Bill McKinnon vs. Terry Martin, Manchester, N. H. Armory A. A. amateur bouts—Jack Harris vs. Joe Jeannette, New York; Tom Overly vs. Black Bill, New York.

SATURDAY—Tommy Murphy vs. Johnny Frazier, New Orleans. Bouts at Portland Me., and National A. C., Philadelphia.

MATTY IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUT

Battling Hurley, the New York lightweight, who Wolgast says Matty Baldwin must defeat before he gives Baldwin a chance to box him for the title, showed up in the manner in which he defeated Willie Beecher in New York last Tuesday night, that Wolgast named hard opponent for Baldwin.

The New Yorker has never appeared in Boston. When Baldwin meets him in their twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night, Baldwin should be in first class shape, for Alick McLean is giving him a hard course of training at Highland Lake. The boat ought to be a good one.

A. J. Duffy of Jamaica Plain, ex-amateur lightweight champion of New England, who displayed ability against Tom Foley, has another busy customer in Young Redman of Webster to meet in one of the six-round preliminaries.

Young Rothwell of East Boston, ex-amateur bantam champion of New England faces Tommy Flanagan, the hard hitting, shifty Cambridge bantam, in a six-round bout. Joe Eagan of Roxbury and Young Reardon, the rugged Brookline lightweight, will meet in the other six-round contest. The club has arranged to give the members the full details of the results of the primary election.

AMATEUR BOXERS TO CLASH AT ARMORY

Judging from the way the entries are being received for the first amateur boxing meeting of the Armory A. A., to be held next Friday night, it will be a long and interesting tournament. As most of the champions in the classes to be contested, 105, 115, 125 and 135 pounds, have joined the pros., the other amateurs will have a chance to make a reputation and the members of the club should see some lively boxing. Entries close with E. F. Walsh, at the club next Wednesday.

70 START IN READING RACES

A field of seventy of the best known local trotters and pacers in and about Boston are entered for the six classic races which will be held on the Reading Fair Grounds to-morrow, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of this week, under the auspices of the Quannapowitt Agricultural Society.

The free-for-all pacing event on Wednesday has ten starters, among whom are Mixedwood, Young Chimes, the Fellaway pacer Bingen, Ginger B. of the Quannapowitt Driving Club, Barry G. and Ella Hal. This event ought to be a red hot race, with a toss-up as to the winner.

The entries:

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

THEY ARE WITH US TO-DAY, WHO do I mean by they! The Chicago Cubs, of course; the canny kids of the National League. Nick the family treasury for twobits, or a half a bean, or a bone, and see that bunch from the West in action today. You'll never regret it, take it from me. Yea be, it's one big day out at the South End grounds.

A WHOLE LOT OF BASEBALL FANS in this burg have been pestering me of late asking whether the Cubs' manager wised me as to what pitchers he would use in the world's series. Frank L. hasn't tipped me off to anything—as yet (get that "as yet") but it's cuss sarfe bet that the fans who see the series will see Brown, Overall, Pfiester and Cole doling the twirling. Mordecai is the big ganaboo, however. He is a past master as a strategist, and is gifted with almost perfect control and a varied assortment of bewildering curves. They're handing you a lot of bull about Brown going back. Forget it. He's as far removed from being a big cheese as Dr. Cook was from the North Pole. They can talk all they want about the invincible pitchers in the Athletic crew but I'll stick by Brown to the last weed. He'll make Bender, Coombs, Morgan or Plank go some.

FRANK KLAUSE IS ANOTHER OF the lads who is doing all he can to force Stanley Ketchel into a match. Just got a letter to-day from Brother George Engel, dated from Fallytown. Gilm the message, "Straight Tips: Just a few lines hoping that you are well. I have Frank Klaus matched to box Frankie Mantell at Pittsburg on next Wednesday, and Ed. McGeorty for ten rounds at Milwauke on October 15. I intend to keep Klaus busy and force Ketchel into a match. If he won't fight I'm going to claim his title for I think Klaus can beat every mug in the country at 130 pounds ringside. We ex pect a box in Boston in the near future. Thanking you for past favors, Yours truly."

Straight Tips: While you're talking, who do you pick to win that world's series, and why?

South Boston.

BUG.

The Cubs, kiddo, the Cubs. They're a bunch of veterans with both feet on the ground, can grasp any baseball opportunity like a flash, and except for pitchers, outclass the Athletics man for man. Connie Mack's crew are full of zinger and energy and his slab artists have something on the Chicago bunch. But when they get down to business, where the science of the game counts, I look for the Cubs to trim the Athletics. At that the latter should put up a better fight than Detroit did.

Straight Tips: Please answer me the following question in your column. Has Jimmy Walsh ever got a decision over Pal Moore?

J. DAWSON.

Yes. The South Boston lad put it over Pal at the Armory A. A.

THE MORE I HEAR OF THAT HAR vard squad the more I believe that the Crimson is going to have an Al eleven this year. Haughton, who knows the rot rules as perhaps no other coach in the country knows them, is whipping that bunch into great shape. They can appl that old term "Mollycoddles" all they want, but I'm strong for the crowd across the river.

WHERE'S THE KID BUT WHO can't tell you the make-up of Chance's men? He may not know the name of the Vice-President, but he'll give you the correct names of all the Cub players, their nicknames, where they came from, and how they are hitting the ball, fielding or pitching. On the level would you blame any of the ginks who are on the roster of the club if they did get a fat head once in a while?

Straight Tips: Will you please inform me what records Melvin Sheppard, the New York runner holds? The other evening at the club, one of the members claimed that Sheppard held only two records, and that he was going after a third. I have followed the work of Sheppard pretty closely and I think he has a few more records to his credit, and that he is still coming. Hoping to receive a prompt reply, and thanking you in advance for your kindness, I remain,

BILLY MOODY.

Sheppard is the way, a champion mid dle distance runner. His records are 40 3-5s. for 440 yards; 1:10 4-5s. for the 600 yards, and 2:12 2-5s. for the 1,000 yards.

NOW THAT THE NEW FOOTBALL rules have been given a tryout, what do you think of them? The big college men are somewhat divided on the question, but from here it is safe to look for at least one more revision.

THE ORIGINAL IS GENERALLY BEST
MELVIN WILLIAMS

Did you ever go into a drug store and ask for a standard article that you had been using for years and have a fresh clerk start to tell you about "something just as good" that the firm was "putting up" for the trade?

I have had them do it to me—many's the time—and I always rejoice in handing it right back to them.

I am a great believer in advertising—good advertising—backed up by honest values in the product advertised.

I have never written a line of advertising for a firm that wasn't reputable in every way. There are no many reliable firms for me to waste good advertising on bad goods.

There are several tailors in Boston, right now, who are telling their trade that they can make as good a suit as Gale & Kent. This may be true—but when they say they can furnish a "Front-that-won't-break-down" in the coat, they are not telling the truth.

There is only one "Front-that-won't-break-down." It is made by Gale & Kent of 96 Court Street. It is registered at the State House as Gale & Kent's exclusive "trade-mark."

If you call at 96 Court Street any time, you can see the certified copy signed by the Secretary of State and bearing the Seal of the Commonwealth. When any other tailor tells you—either personally or in his advertising—that he makes a "coat front that will not shrivel" or a "coat front that will stand up" or anything of that nature—he is merely trying to steal some of the value of Gale & Kent's advertising. A firm that will steal another firm's advertising cannot be trusted to make a suit of clothes for anybody.

Gale & Kent are originators—they have been in business for 18 years at 96 Court Street—they will make you or your father or your brother or any live man a suit of clothes or overcoat for $15 to $25. The finest line of new woolens in America are there from which you may choose the goods.

Every coat is made after their famous original design—"The-front-that-won't-break-down." Every garment is guaranteed in every way. Call day or evening and join the host of best-satisfied and best-dressed men in Boston.

Horse and Speedway Notes

The fine weather tempted a number of the owners of the local matinee horses to drive over the road yesterday with their horses to Reading, where the fair races, which begin to-day, promise some excellent sport.

* * *

Jack Dorey will continue as a judge for the closing race meetings at Woodsmere and Hill's Grove. He has done excellently well in a very trying position, and there will be no more of these Arlington-Admorell race ongers tried, which, by the way, Jack slipped in the bud.

* * *

Jack Shackpole of the Fellaway Driving Club has turned in a grand job of work in arranging for the benefit held for Charles S. Hawson. He collected a nice bit of money, which will go to the immediate aid of a good fellow, and who in his severe illness deserves the assistance of all the boys.

* * *

A good sized company of Boston horsemen am to attend the Rockingham races at Lexington, headed, of course, by the king of the regulators, George W. Leavitt of Readville. The Futurity should be the greatest renewal of the race in history, and the Transylvania a race worth a trip across the country to witness.

* * *

The question of who owns the crack matinee pacer of Greater Boston should be pretty well determined when Edwin B. Young Chimes, King Brino, Mixedwood, Alntree, Ginger B., Billy Baggs, Ella Hal, Argot Lad, Roger S. and Alberta G. meet in that free-for-all at Reading on Wednesday.

* * *

The races seemed a bit light at Columbus upon the opening week of the Grand Circuit, but this was brought about by the counter attraction at Detroit. With all the horses in fine this week the second half of the racing in the Buckeye capital should be a hummer.

* * *

The "Meier" matinee to-morrow at the Charles River Speedway will provide an interesting race in the fast trot, with Monroe, Octavio, Victor C. and Hawkins taking the word.

* * *

It was a capital idea to bring the Greater Boston matinee horses together at the Reading Fair. With a free-for-all, 2:30, 2:18 and 2:12 classes for the same four drivers no patron of the game has a very good excuse for staying out.

* * *

Chief Wilkie, 2:06¾, is very good just now, and should turn in a very fast half to-morrow, when he starts in a fight against the watch at the Charles River Speedway. He should come very near shading 1:02.

* * *

Harry Brusie continues upon his winning way at the fairs in northern New England. And Jay Kay, the converted trotter, continues to be a clever breadwinner.

* * *

Everything indicates that the coming Hockton Fair races will be the greatest in the history of the popular half-mile track. That scheme of "nothing from nothing" sounds a charm.

* * *

Fred Sanborn has his matinee trotter Billy J., 2:17¾, going right well, and over the week end the hopped pacer, Ella Hal, won beats, in 2:06¾, 2:06¾.

* * *

General Braxton Ives, the king of road drivers, will start to wagon with his great trotting mare Harvoness Virginia, 2:08¾, this week, and his friend, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, has promised to be present at the Dutchess Fair at Poughkeepsie.

Thoughts Guide Our Lives

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

THE more we realize the tremendous responsibility of our mental emanations the better for the world and ourselves. The sooner we teach little children what a mighty truth lies in the Bible phrase "As a man thinketh, so is he," the better for future generations.

If a man thinks sickness, poverty and misfortune, he will meet them and claim them all eventually as his own. But he will not acknowledge the close relationship—he will deny his own children and declare they were sent to him by an evil fate.

Every kindergarten and public school teacher ought to embody this idea in the daily lesson for children.

WE CAN ELIMINATE HATE

It may not be possible to teach a child to "love every neighbor as himself," for that is the most difficult of Commandments to follow to the letter; but it is possible to eliminate hatred from a nature, if we awaken sympathy for the object of dislike.

That which we pity we cannot hate. The wonderful Intelligence which set this superb system of worlds in action must have been inspired by love for all it created.

So much grandeur and magnificence—so much perfection of detail—could only spring from Love.

Whatever is out of harmony in our little world has been caused by man's substituting hate and fear for love and faith.

Every time we allow either hate or fear to dominate our minds we disarrange the order of the universe and make trouble for humanity—and ourselves.

It may be a little late in reaching us, but it is sure to come back to the Mind which sent forth the cause.

Every time we entertain thoughts of love, sympathy, forgiveness and faith, we add to the well-being of the world, and create fortunate and successful conditions for ourselves.

Those, too, may be late in coming to us—but they will come.

MIND MUST BE TRAINED

When we once realize that by driving away pessimistic, angry and bitter thoughts we drive away sickness and misfortune to a great extent, and that by seeking the kinder and happier frame of mind we seek at the same time success and health and good luck, we will find a new impetus in the control of our mental forces.

For we all love to be paid for our worthy deeds—even while we believe in being good for good's sake only. And nothing in life is surer than this:

Right thinking pays large dividends.

Mirandy on Woman's Sphere

By Dorothy Dix

"WELL, ole lady," says Ike de odder night as he laid down his paper, "here's one preacher dat de Lawd has give de strength to speak de true word, and I only wish dat I lived in London, so dat I could go to his church an' help hold up his hand, tak de Good Book says.

"In dese times when Hell fire an' damnation is done gone out of fashion, preachers of lit warn't for de women. I'd didn' somethin, else dat he don't want to do, so I bet dat Father Vaughn wouldn't talk to have a picture of himself a bowlin' over fist. You don't take notice dat no man is a-lookin' any steep because some woman is a-takin' in washin' or standin' over a cook stove, or walkin' forty 'leven lin' an' lenths an' scrubbin', and de only time date he's ever moved to save us any steps is when he says dat he'll jest meander round to de ladies what I does de kind dat has got good pay to hit, do washin for an' collect de money dat dey owes me.

"A woman never does look so good to a man as when she's at a washtub doing a week's washing."

"When a man gets excited about a fragile female strainin' her constitution you can bet she is holdin' down a job he wants."

in' has got to be so wishy-washy dat you can't tell half de time whedder you've gone to church or to de Yoddyville show, an' mos' especially preachers is kinder lie up on washes, an' don't hand out no talk about bein' de weaker vessel tak day used to.

"Huh, an' said good reason," spoms I. "De preachers know which side of dere bread is buttered, an dat dere wouldn't be no soft preachin' jobs left an' lakwise no when he says dat hit's a grand an' noble sight to see a woman at de wash tub, an' dat is what he laks to see her best."

"In Her Proper Spear,"

"Well," spoms I, "so far as I has had any 'sperience, he's just about even wid it all de men on dat proposition. A woman never does look so good to a man as when she's at de wash tub, or de cookin' stove, or walkin' a baby wid de colic, or

"She's Out of Her Spear"

"Dat's what mixed me up about dis spear business, but I done figgered hit all out now, an' I found out dat dey ain't no such a woman does de kind of wuk dat a man don't want to do, an' dat ain't got no pay to hit much, dey she's in her sacred spear, but dat when she gits a good job wid a guy envelope to hit dat's wuth totin' home of a Sat'dey night, den she's got out of her spear an' everybody's tryin' to shun her back into hit.

"Yassum, whenever a man gets real hot up an' excited about a frogile female strainin her delicate constitution by pursoin' some career, you can jest bet yo' last dollar dat dat woman is a-holdin' down some place dat he's got his eye on for himself, an' dat she's mus'n' money hand, dan any night, watchman has ever done a-punchin' a clock.

"Yassum, hit don't never strike he dat dere's any hard wuk in cookin' an' washin' over a cook stove, or walkin' forty 'leven lin' an' lenths an' scrubbin', and de only

"Yassum, dat's so. De only labor dat men thinks dat women is too feeble to do is de kind dat has got good pay to hit. Ef I was to ax for a job as a policeman I dey owes me.

A Home of Their Own

And—Blissful Thought—it was going on the same way, day after day, forever, just as long as the two of them would live in this world

How She Got Complexion

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"THAT girl has a lovely complexion; I wonder how she gets it?" and the speaker, a sallow-faced girl, looked enviously at a tall girl who swung by the veranda off for her morning tramp.

I looked at the speaker and felt like saying: "I can tell you a few things that she does not do, my dear," as my eyes fell on the box of chocolates on her lap.

I had watched the pink-cheeked girl for weeks, and knew her habits pretty well.

For one thing, she drank neither tea nor coffee, but milk and plenty of water in their place.

She has a good, healthy appetite, and eats quantities of bread and butter, eggs and vegetables, especially spinach, and eats meat but once a day.

Plenty of Water

She told me herself that she rarely eats pie or rich desserts, but eats a good deal of fruit. "I don't drink anything at meals," she said; "but I drink a lot of water between meals."

Then, on second thought, she added: "I forgot, though; I do drink a glass of milk at breakfast and luncheon."

The girl who envied her, the sallow one, is something made from morning till night, and drinks black coffee for breakfast.

She sits on the veranda all day long with a novel or her sewing.

All girls long for good complexions and few take the trouble to get them. Strong coffee almost invariably produces sallow skin. Milk is just as cheap and ten times more healthy.

Fat, greasy foods will coarsen the skin and make it oily.

Lack of exercise will make you puffy and pasty.

Beware Tight Lacing

Tight lacing will give you a red nose and indigestion, which will cause your skin to break out in an ugly eruption.

That's true, every word of it, for a wise man who knows much about skin troubles told me so.

American girls are famous for their delicate, rose-leaf complexions, but they are doing their best to ruin them by foolish eating of sweets and lack of fresh air and exercise. I know that many girls are forced to spend most of their waking hours in the close atmosphere of shops, office or factory. The only thing to do is to try to make the most of the remaining hours.

Sleep with your window open, no matter how much you have to scrump up during the Winter months in order to do so.

Give Up Pie and Coffee

Try to give up the morning coffee and the soggy pie at noon. I've watched girls in the downtown restaurants and I know how much pie is consumed.

The girl who is on her feet all day naturally does not crave much exercise, but if she walks even a few blocks it will rest her tired muscles and make her sleep better.

Cleanliness is one of the most necessary steps toward a good complexion. Wash your face in cold water in the morning and in warm water at night.

Daysey Mayme in New York

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

IT doesn't make any difference to Daysey Mayme Appleton that her bobble skirt prevents her from getting anywhere, for with her new style Fatt hat on she couldn't see where she wanted to go if she had a destination.

She puts on her bobble skirt and hat, and stands on the walk. In a few minutes a rush crowd comes along and she is swept away by it, and this is why she found herself the other day going into a hole in the ground; pushed up to a window where a man glared at her because she asked him where she was going, and didn't have her money ready, and pushed by the crowd on to a train. There wasn't a seat, and with her hat covering her eyes she couldn't see a strap, but she selected a fat woman, leaned up against her, and went to sleep.

"The real New Yorker," she explained when she got home, "never reads a paper or sleeps at home. He does both on the cars. I have become a real New Yorker."

Refreshed by a nap in which she dreamed she was in hell, she awakened to find that the fat woman had gotten out and that she was resting against a very thin man. She swung on the other foot, and found herself on the floor, but every one around her was asleep, or reading, and no one noticed it.

Her second nap was taken with her head on a school girl's knee, and when she awakened and tried to get up, she found she couldn't overcome the hobble. Daysey Mayme is a modest girl, but she lifted her skirts over her head, and got on her feet. And no one saw her!

The jolting of the cars threw her from one man's lap into another's, and at times she slept for fifteen minutes on the laps of men she had never seen before, but they were also asleep and never knew it.

Frances L. Garside is the well-known writer whose Daysey Mayme articles have been published from time to time in every newspaper in the United States. She was for years one of the leading editors of the Atchison Globe, and has contributed frequently to the magazines. She is now writing exclusively for the Hearst newspapers.

Daysey Mayme became more particular in the next hour, and when she felt that the car was about to throw her, selected the legs of gos-looking men as landing places. She found one that was as easy as a hammock, and was prepared to stay all day, when, with a roar and a jerk, the train stopped, and the crowd rushed out carrying Daysey Mayme with it. Her clothes were torn off, her hat was a new shape, and on crooked, but she had slept so well, and felt so refreshed she didn't mind it.

"Take the subway," says Daysey Mayme, "if you want a Turkish bath, a dressing room, a reading room, and a bed while going across town. The delights of the free lunch may be combined if you are fortunate enough to get caught in the jam with your head anywhere near a lunch basket. No one sees what any one else does on a subway car."

There is some hope for the boy who has to be driven into a bathtub, but none for the one who has to be driven from a mirror.

Paste This Above Your Gas Stove

"MATCHES are cheaper than gas."

The burner may be extinguished a few moments before your cooking is finished and still retain heat enough for the purpose.

At night turn off the stop cock between the stove and the main pipe to prevent waste.

Use the pilot light, only, to keep things warm.

After your cooking has reached the boiling point, turn the gas down to a point which will keep it at that stage.

Cover flatirons when heating with a long handle stewpan, upside down, to conserve the heat, or, if you have cooking to do, use the stewpan for, that purpose, on top the irons. It is easily lifted off by the handle when you desire to change irons.

Toast your bread or crisp our breakfast food underneath the flame which boils your coffee.

If you have a furnace take beans, scallops, etc., just within the door.

All of these things will reduce your gas bill materially.

Freckle-Face

If the Summer Brought Out Unsightly Spots You Can Remove Them Easily.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength, from Houghton & Dutton or Ritter-Jaynes Drug Co., and one-nighter's treatment will show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion.

Now that the Summer has brought its crop of freckles to most women, there is an unusual demand for Othine, and in September the druggist sometimes finds it difficult to get sufficient to supply all calls. Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as it is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

To-day's Best Story

SEWELL FORD tells this one about a neighbor of his at Barnegat on the New Jersey coast:

"It was a very dark night and my friend was riding home on his bicycle, which was minus a lamp. He came to a cross roads, and was in doubt which way to turn. After some fumbling in his pockets he found a lone match, and with it in his teeth he proceeded to scrape the sign post to read the names of the two forking lanes. The pole was an unusually high one, but he managed to reach the top, and striking his match read the words, 'Wet Paint.'"

Desperate Desmond

THEY ARE HOWLISSES! LITTLE DO THEY SUSPECT THAT HE CUT FROM MY PRISON SUIT!
YOURS WRONG, DESMOND. THAT IS NOT A PRISONER!
YOU COULDN'T FOOL ME, CLAUDE ECLAIRE WHEN YOU ARE SWALLOWED BY THE TIDE, YOUR SWEET-HEART ROSAMOND WILL BE MINE.
I DEFY YOU
WHY DOESN'T CLAUDE RETURN? I HAVE BROUGHT THIS BARREL FOR HIM TO WALK HOME IN. I HOPE THE PARSON ALSO I WASN'T WITH HER TWO DAYS. ALL THESE YEARS FOR NOTHING. HAND OVER THOSE PAPERS, MY PROUD BEAUTY!
NEVER!
HA, HA! HA!
HAVE COURAGE, ROSAMOND! DON'T GIVE UP THE PAPERS!
LIVED

Clad in what is left of a once beautiful striped suit, Claude does a Dredle into the briny deep, thereby foiling the arch-villain, Desperate Desmond. Clever stunt—what?

But Claude can't stay in the water forever, and Desmond is waiting for him with a gun. What will the poor boy do now? Have patience, gentle reader. Time will tell.

Oh, look who's here! 'Tis brave Rosamond with Claude's pardon and a barral for him to go home in. Have a care, Rosamond! Desperate Desmond is lurking in the foreground.

That was a wonderful flying leap that Desmond made. He had to drop his gun to do it, but you bet your life he never let go of that cigarette. No, not he.

And now Claude has the gun. Let us hope he doesn't shoot. He might nix Rosamond or the horse, or even the barrel, but Desmond would be perfectly safe.

It's lucky that was a thin horse, otherwise Rosamond would never have got through between those trees. But wait till Claude catches Desmond. Full particulars in the next pictures.

Here Are Cavalieri's Choice Beauty Secrets

Lina Cavalieri, the world's most famous beauty, now the wife of Robert Winthrop Chanler, grandson of the late John Jacob Astor, is the one woman who knows what every woman wants to know the secret of being beautiful.

For more than a year the prima donna, whose name at present is on the lips of the entire world, has been writing for the BOSTON AMERICAN a series of articles entitled, "My Secrets of Beauty." To-day the AMERICAN prints a number of extracts from Cavalieri's famous receipts. The following recipe of Cavalieri's pertains to the caring for the hair.

Caring for the Hair.

First of all, get rid of the dandruff. This can be done by washing the hair regularly once every day. Dissolve in the water half a cake of the best soap. If made of spermaceti all the better. Part your hair, dip a small brush the size of a toothbrush into the water, and rub vigorously.

Then rub the other partings in the same manner. When this is done, empty the basin; fill it again with clean water. Use the other portion of the soap, and repeat the performance. Then do it the third time, this time using your fingers in the place of the brush.

Don't dry your hair by artificial means. Use a brisk towel, rubbing it quickly from the hair and upon the scalp, drying both the hair and the scalp by this process at the same time and avoiding neuralgia.

The hair should always be plentifully brushed, giving it between 100 and 200 strokes at each combing. Pay particular attention to the scalp, massaging it frequently. Give the hair plenty of air. Sit or stand near an open window, in the sun, as often as possible after each combing. A stimulating hair and scalp shampoo may be found in the following prescription:

Acetone	100 grams
Oil of ricin	10 grams
Precipitated sulphur	20 grams
Pyrogallic acid	2 grams
Chrysophanic acid	20 centigrams

Thirty grains of petit grain.
Five ounces rectified spirits.

Rub it carefully and easily into the cheeks, moving the hands from side to side. In using cold cream for massage purposes always be sure and get the best. If possible, have it thoroughly analyzed before using.

Exercise to Retain Beauty.

After the regular daily bath take a little light exercise, calisthenics or a short walk of not more than a mile, recline in a loose garment in a dark room for a period not exceeding an hour each afternoon. Take breakfast in bed, beginning with a cup of hot water. In walking, a woman should hold her elbows closely to her sides, letting her clenched hands rest on her stomach.

Rosewater	2 ozs.

Care of the Teeth.

One-half pint of warm water, in which is dissolved one teaspoonful of table salt. Use a good, stiff brush. Keep your brush for your own use, thus avoiding possession of the gums. Teeth should be cleaned on rising in the morning, after each meal, and before retiring at night.

Ten Beauty Commandments.

1. When your mirror tells you you are not looking well, rest.

2. To keep the hair beautiful, wash it once a week.

3. To keep the mouth young, massage with your little fingers the lines of petulance from nostril to lip.

4. To have always a youthful contour, keep the line of the jaw as thin as a knife edge.

5. To keep the nose shapely, give it frequent massage.

6. To keep away the ugly, middle-aged redness of the nose, use hot compresses on it.

7. To keep the tired lines away from the eyes, bathe the lids and skin about the eyes with water as warm as you can endure it.

8. To make the eyes always brilliant, bathe them as often as you do your face. Use an eyecup filled with rosewater.

9. To avoid the multiplied chin, sleep with the head low, the lower the better.

10. To refresh the dry, withered skin, bathe it often in water as warm as you can endure.

SYNOPSIS

HIRAM BELKNAP is the leading citizen of Fairview, a small village in New York State. He is a lawyer for the railroad and the boss politician. His heart is wrapped up in his daughter, Jane, a young girl of nineteen or twenty.

Tom Wilson, son of a widow, whose husband was a close friend of Belknap's, and Hezekiah Jenks, the lawyer's clerk and secretary, are rivals for Jane's hand. Tom worries "Hez" to keep away from the Belknap home, as he regards Jane as his own private property.

Mrs. Wilson finds the resources left her at the death of her husband almost exhausted after giving Tom an education, and asks the advice of Lawyer Belknap in regard to her son's future. Belknap tells of an offer to take Tom into his office that he made the boy, which had been refused. The widow tells of Tom's ambition to go to New York, and the lawyer tells her to let him go.

Tom has a talk with the lawyer, and tells him that the village is not big enough for him and his talents. He says that he has been offered $15 a week in the passenger department of the Central, and the lawyer advises him to take it. Tom is sure that whatever arrangement he may have had with his daughter, Jane, is at an end, and the lawyer calls Jane in at an end, and the lawyer calls Jane in to have a talk with Tom.

In the talk with Jane Tom tells of his love for her, and suggests that they get married. She objects because he has no prospects.

She tells him she wants love and protection and says she thinks he had better go to New York. He finally understands that she wants him to "make good" before she marries him and he decides to leave for the big city the next day.

He tells Belknap of the arrangement and says that if he fails to "make good" he will not return.

Tom has trouble in paying his board and confides to a fellow boarder, Merkle, who is a newspaperman, that he objects to the way the landlady serves food around from room to room. He tells Merkle that he is looking for a job and is willing to work cheap. These confidences are made in the dining room while they are waiting for the dinner bell.

CHAPTER IX.

At Mrs. Bannons Table.

MISS PERTINAH, though forty, still hoped. She dressed as garishly as she dared, and had studied the art of make-up not wisely but too well after the models of the stage. She had two distinct manners—one of elaborate politeness when she was pleased or seeking a favor, another of fine hauteur when she was disappointed or ruffled.

"Good evening," she said as she entered, with as much grace on an extra extreme bobble skirt permitted.

"Good evening, Miss Dunstan," said Tom, with his frank country courtesy. "I'll be down in a minute," he added to Merkle, as he ran up stairs.

"Am I the first," asked Miss Dunstan in feigned astonishment.

"The first after me," said Merkle, deep in the pages of the newspaper that Tom had surrendered to him.

"It's very strange how you manage to hear the bell before it rings," said Miss Dunstan, sweetly, taking a chair at the opposite side of the table.

"I have inside information," said Merkle, still reading.

Following Miss Dunstan came Phelps, the commercial traveler, followed by his wife, opulent in person, but a little bedraggled of attire.

Single, Phelps might have put up at a more pretentious establishment, and he had never quite forgiven his wife for insisting on dividing his twenty-five dollars a week with him.

"Warm, isn't it?" ventured Mrs. Phelps, with the boarding house instinct for making conversation.

Miss Dunstan's eyes had been rivated on Mrs. Phelps, since that lady's arrival. "Is that a new dress?" she asked, at length.

"Do you like it?" inquired Mrs. Phelps, suspiciously.

"It's the one you had last spring, isn't it?" said Miss Dunstan viciously. "But you've done something to it."

Boarding House Amenities

"Can I have a piece of your paper?" he asked.

"I'm not through with it," Merkle shouted, grabbing it and placing it beyond the other's reach.

Phelps snorted with indignation. Merkle continued calmly to read.

"Good evening. There's all the others?" This greeting came from the doorway, where the landlady, with all the pomp and dignity of an oyster sloop, was looking into the dining room.

Mrs. Bannan complained that the meagre returns of a boarding house were gradually reducing her to starvation; but no honest set of scales would have agreed with her.

Her dress compared in proportions with the area of a small balloon. Lucy had long ago despaired of finding a chair that would bear her mistress's weight without groaning, and had at last asked the janitor, secretly, to reinforce one of the dining room set with quarter-inch steel rods.

The landlady was fat, but not always good natured. To-night, however, she was in high spirits, for she had been spending the afternoon at Coney Island with the star boarder, none other than Herman Leitz, who owned a whole barber shop, and was consequently important in his own estimation, and in that of Mrs. Bannan.

The Star Boarder

Leitz was no featherweight, but his plumpness compared but feebly with that of Mrs. Brennan.

If he was a man of few words. She was a woman of many. His taste in clothing ran to somber black. Her's would have been the despair of the man who plans the posters for the Hippling circus.

"Sit down, dearie," said Mrs. Bannan, laying a heavy hand on Leitz's shoulder and thereby him with unintentional violence into the seat at her right.

She ceremoniously took the place at the head of the table, arose, adjusted herself more comfortably, repeated the action, and at last, settled immovably, turned to Lucy.

She looked sternly at two vacant places along the table—the places that belonged to Tom and Miss Le Roy.

CHAPTER X.

The Wit of the Boarding House

"IF some people knew how much trouble we have to keep their food warm for prospects——"

"Lucy, did you ring the bell on every floor?" she inquired as the maid came in, laden with a tray of plates of thin soup.

"Yes'm," said Lucy.

"Hello, Mother, what's on the bill to-night?"

The question came from Joe Weinstein, the ticket speculator, who was always in a hurry, and always late for meals.

He advanced through the hallway as he spoke, and took a seat between Phelps and Merkle. "Rush me through as quick as you can, will you?" he said, as he seized a handful of crackers from a plate at Leitz's elbow, and tucked them quickly into his mouth.

"Lucy," called Mrs. Bannan, "bring Mr. Weinstein's soup."

"Scratch the soup," said Weinstein, "and me along with the big meat number, and all the little side surprises. Hello Leitzy, how's the boy treating you?"

"I never complain," said Mr. Leitz, pleasantly.

"Why shouldn't he be," demanded Miss Dunstan, looking at Mrs. Bannan. "He gets the best of everything."

Mrs. Bannan's Repartee

"This is a free country, Miss Dunstan," said Mrs. Bannan, haughtily. "If you're not satisfied with what you get here for eight a week you know what you can do."

"Mother is right there with the comeback," said Weinstein, making peace. "What's the news from the front, sweetheart?" He turned to Miss Dunstan, using the most ceremonious form of adress he knew anything about.

"I very nearly got an engagement to-day," said Miss Dunstan, importantly.

"How did you escape?" asked Weinstein, with a fragile affectation of interest.

"I was just talking saucy with a manager," she explained, "when another girl came in. He'd met her in Paris."

"I know," said Weinstein, with an intelligent nod, "he was under obligations."

"What made you so late to-night?" Mrs. Bannan snapped the question at Weinstein.

"My boy didn't get back in time," he said, his mouth full of bread. "Say, Mother, hustle that dinge along, won't you? I'm getting nervous."

"You ain't the only one at this table, Mr. Weinstein," Mrs. Bannan informed him. "If you're in such a hurry, why don't you go to a quick lunch restaurant?"

"I'm paying for it here, ain't I?" he said. "What's the use of squandering money?" Times are too hard. Ah, come right here to me, fair one," he finished, as Lucy entered with a tray.

Mrs. Bannan turned to Mr. Leitz.

"Through, darling?" she asked tenderly. "Lucy, take Mr. Leitz's plate."

"Golly, that soup was fine," said Mr. Leitz, as Lucy collected the plates.

Mrs. Bannan moved over the empty chairs.

"I guess you'd better ring that bell again," she instructed Lucy. "If they don't hear it this time they'll have to do without anything. I'm not running an all night restaurant."

"Who ain't here yet?" inquired Mr. Leitz.

"Mr. Wilson and Miss Le Roy," said Mrs. Bannan.

"Then you'll come in together. They always do," said Mr. Leitz.

"I think there's a case all right," said Phelps, looking up. "When that boy first came here I knew there'd be something doing."

"If I were you, I wouldn't say anything unless I knew," Merkle's scowling face backed up the threat in his rasping voice.

Fashionable Set Flocks to Merry Autumn Resorts

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

That fashionable element of society which, like the birds, is free to select a new abode with every changing season, still flutters about, looking for the most delightful spot in which to spend the glorious days of Autumn.

The Joseph Leiters who are always important factors in North Shore society, are shortly leaving their Manchester estate for Virginia Hot Springs, Va., where they will spend three or four weeks prior to going to Washington for the Winter. They are planning a short European trip next Spring. Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter is planning to remain on the North Shore until late in October, attending to the furnishing of her new Summer home at Beverly Farms.

Robert C. Winthrop, Jr., who spent a portion of the Summer at the family estate at West Manchester, is to sail for Europe on Wednesday.

John T. Morse, Jr., and family are to conclude their season at Pride's Crossing next Thursday.

Miss Juliet Higginson, one of the few Boston society girls who have taken to running their own establishments and have purchased estates of their own, has transferred her interests to Dover, where she has an exceptionally fine farm.

Mrs. William M. Wood is planning to return to the F. L. Higginson cottage at Pride's Crossing for a couple of weeks, after her children are safely settled in school. The family is at present at Arden, their country estate in Andover.

The Watson F. Blairs, who have been on the North Shore for the Summer, are to bring their stay there to a close on Wednesday. The S. Parker Brewers are also to close their cottage the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Whitehouse and their son are still aboard their fine yacht "Iris," and will not occupy their Manchester estate, "Crowhurst," until the middle of October.

The Russell Tyndes of Chicago, will remain at Manchester until the middle of October.

The Misses Alice and Olivia Thorndike have returned to the Thorndike estate from a brief visit in New York. The Thorndikes are planning to remain at West Manchester until the 1st of December, and will continue their delightful week-end hospitalities.

Mrs. Sylvester Tower and family will close their Manchester villa early in October and will return to their town house on Commonwealth avenue on October 7.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Billings, who are now occupying their new Summer home at Marblehead, which they purchased last Spring, will not open their Commonwealth avenue home until after Thanksgiving.

J. B. REYNOLDS IS ASSAILED BY THE GERMANS

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—J. B. Reynolds of Boston, who is now in Berlin, is being assailed by the German newspapers on charges of breach of confidence in giving out information he is collecting in Germany. As a member of the American Tariff Commission Mr. Reynolds is sending from the American consular reports as to the working of the Payne-Aldrich tariff with reference to the German trade.

Months ago when the tariff was being prepared Mr. Reynolds came here to collect facts bearing on the cost of German manufactures with which American merchants compete. The charges now made by the press are the result of this visit. It is outlined that Mr. Reynolds caused to be published the high wages paid here in Germany. The papers assert that the publication of these facts has been a cause of great harm to this country.

Americans here say the argument being used against Mr. Reynolds is far fetched, and point out that for years it has been the custom for all consular reports to give exhaustive facts regarding wage scales of foreign lands. The American consular reports of existing wage figures in that country, and these are made use of here. Mr. Reynolds' friends say the attacks being made on him by the papers are unfair and unjust.

The papers are also attacking Mark Davis, Benjamin Brewster, Robert Israel and Clifford A. White, who are the representatives of American manufacturers at the conferences on the potash question. The potash industry in Germany is now under government control. It is now a German monopoly. Because of the interference of trade in this line with America, this government has forced the potash syndicate to the conference table. The purpose of the conference is to arrange for German tariff so as to allow exports to America but very little.

The papers are now insisting that Americans in trade matters have this to the result of the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

UNKNOWN MOTORISTS RUN DOWN WOMAN

An automobile numbered 19,728 Mass. ran into and seriously injured Mrs. Ida Schneider, thirty, of No. 81 Porter street, East Boston, on Grove street, Dedham. But for the action of Joseph Cline of No. 105 Havre street, East Boston, who pulled her away from the front of the machine, she might have been run over and probably fatally injured. The auto is registered as the property of Catherine A. Breen of No. 25 Charlotte street, Dorchester. In the auto there were two men and two women.

"L" FIRE SCARE MERELY SMOKE

Smoke escaping from a leaking motor beneath a southbound Elevated train started hundreds of persons on Washington street, who thought the station was afire, from Dover street to Dudley street terminal scenes shouted at the passengers, and every time more was promised than only because people on the street were unable to guess the fires aboard the train understood their warnings. At Dudley street the cause was discovered and the motor with the defective motor was taken from the train for repairs.

NAIL WOUND FATAL TO WALTHAM BOY

Joseph Whalen, 16 years old, is dead at the Waltham hospital from lockjaw. The disease was caused by a wound made by a rusty nail, a week ago, as he stepped on a board in the yard of his father, T. J. Whalen of 15 Calvary street, Waltham, and a month and a half after the accident he died. Whalen was a member of the junior class in the Waltham High school.

TWO BEGIN PARIS TO BRUSSELS FLIGHT

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Two biplanists, Mathieu and Tondon, each with a passenger, started on a flight to Brussels for the Aero Club's prize of $30,000, which will be open until December 31. The prize of $5,000 offered by the municipality of Paris, which was to have been awarded to Roi de Boulogne because of trouble with his engine. Four others started for the course, but his gasoline give out and he was forced to descend.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD BY LANCERS

The National Lancers held a largely attended memorial service at the New Old South Church, Copley square. Under the command of Captain John B. Barton the company marched from the armory on Dalton street to the church. Before the church service the Rev. W. H. Rider, D. D., of Gloucester, delivered an address and the invocation was given by the chaplain of the company, the Rev. C. A. Vincent, D. D.

AVIATOR IS KILLED; PASSENGER ESCAPES

CHARLES, France, Sept. 26.—Pollet, the aviator, was killed while making a flight with a passenger. The latter escaped with slight injuries. The machine had covered a height of nearly 600 feet and was turning well, when a piece of canvas tightened. Then the wings of the machine fell backward, turning completely over and bringing the aviator under the wreckage. Pollet's spine was broken.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It is believed tac time is drawing near when the opportunities in the way of both investment and speculation will be unusually good. As the public does not care to go short of the market, the constructive side is the one it wants to take when it does anything in the way of speculation.

There is a buying power in the country but it is not being manifested now. It is suppressed because it is held back. The money must have some more to come in session, but it cannot be drawn out in the amount of late. Before the stock market now affects. Things are ripening to show there.

It may be necessary before the steel rates are held and the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the railroad freight rate increases handed down, to take some further declines in the stock market, and there is no doubt this can be accomplished with comparative ease.

There is a possibility of a sharp drive at prices before the real recovery, which so many confidently anticipate, appears, and this will not preclude an advance before the real recession. If a bull movement is contemplated it will be of a purely manipulative character.

But forewarned may be forearmed, although in the majority of cases the latter class of men who would not hesitate to use their advantages for the furtherance of their own interests, it might be well for them to see how they can be prevented from carrying out their designs if they have any upon the market.

The traffic managers of most of the railroads of the United States say they have no reason to complain as to the business they are doing, and they deny the pessimistic reports in circulation in the street regarding the general trade of the country.

$ $ $

In the they are joined by the superintendents of many large industries. There seem unite in saying that trade is normal and even increasing in some lines. The movement of natural tonnage in itself is no doubt in general healthy conditions.

$ $ $

More attention is being paid just now in the financial world to coal properties than to any other one issue except pol itics. The shortage of supplies, as pointed to the constantly falling bunk clearances, is a direct result of the severe coal strikes which seem have been subjected to the rate boosting power by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the fact that possibly other will demand a too radical revision of the tariff.

$ $ $

Pertinent liquidation of standard issues has been moved toward closer to banks and bankers who wouldn't act for owners of the so called privileged Oil securities. A new section a new theory has been reported to the effect that the oil business is entering on vast acquisitions that the Standard oil people are distributing their holdings intimately as possible from other enterprises to bring it into oil. The oil fields in California are developing so rapidly that it is not of material importance whether the Alaska coal fields are used in this generation.

$ $ $

The position of Standard Oil as a company has been strengthened very much by the growth of independent concerns of which one of the most aggressive is that under control of John W. Gates in Texas. There is a belief in the street that when a final smoothing of oil companies is made the dissolution will be found in full possession of its share of the business.

$ $ $

Oil is being introduced as fuel everywhere and the development of economy in handling make it superior. As a result this means that many oil stocks eventually will be introduced to the public in the next few months.

$ $ $

There are two railroad stocks in the list which are regarded as prime investments, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific. The latter is not so highly regarded on the market because it is not so well seasoned as the other, but it is believed by those in the street is that Southern Pacific will continue to pay its regular quarterly rate and will benefit the stockholders greatly soon.

$ $ $

The annual report of Chesapeake & Ohio company, showing $4.50 per cent. earned on the common stock in the last fiscal year, has not yet been published. The reason it was so well advertised. The property has developed wonderfully in the last twelve months and the 5 per cent. dividend already is well protected. Investors are beginning to take notice of the issue again.

$ $ $

If investors could be convinced that the 6 per cent. dividend on coal oil stocks would be maintained there is no doubt there would be a rapid advance in these issues from their present quotation, 10 to more than 5 per cent. Investors say it is by all means the strongest of the coal issues, provided the dividend remains as it is. Yet investors do not seem to be in a great hurry to take it on.

16 APPOINTMENTS TO THE TECH STAFF

Sixteen new appointments have just been announced in the instructing staff at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Professor Ernest F. Lougley of Dartmouth college is to be the new head of the mechanical engineering department. The opening of the institute on Wednesday will also witness the following new appointments: Henry H. Webb, instructor in naval architecture; assistants in civil engineering, Carroll R. Benton, Walter K. Brownell, Edgar G. Chase, Ralph W. Horne, John P. Wentworth; assistants in mechanical engineering, Lester E. Briggs, Ihan Peabody, Lawrence Chapman, Lake E. Sawyer, Arthur P. Stone, Chester W. Wilson; assistant in inorganic chemistry, Harold L. Lougz; research assistant in organic chemistry, Ralph Mc. Thomas; assistant in naval architecture, Gordon G. Hedstrom.

DOCTOR SEES CURE OF INFANT PARALYSIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Important facts with regard to infantile paralysis are reported by Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute. He believes there is now a basis on which to develop methods of prevention and hopes for the working out of a specific method of treatment. So potent is the virus of infantile paralysis, reports Dr. Flexner, than when placed in distilled water it will pass through the pores of a porcelain filter. The virus he declares to be one of the most minute organisms known.

TRAIN AND AUTO CRASH KILLS THREE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—Three persons were killed and two were seriously injured at Gloucester, N. J., when an electric train on the West Jersey railroad struck an automobile. The accident occurred at Essex street. There are no safety gates at the crossing, and big bulletins on both sides of the street prevented the occupants of the automobile from seeing the approaching electric train.

STOCKS JUMP AFTER OPENING

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Practically every standard railroad and industrial share showed marked gains over the close at the opening of the market in Wall street today. Union Pacific quoting a gain of ¾ of a point, Reading an advance of 1¾ points and Steel ⅝ were the leaders in the upward movement. The opening was irregular, but after the first half hour prices began to rise. Amalgamated lost ⅛ of a point, but later gained ¼. Western Union gained ⅝ point. Later a bullish movement appeared paying particular attention to the leading Union Pacific and Steel. Chesapeake & Ohio was strong gaining ¾ of a point despite announcement that an action had been brought in the Logansport (Indiana) Supreme Court for the dissolution of the C. & O. Railroad on that State recently formed to take over the old Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville property.

American shares in London were irregular, quoting average losses of from ¼ to ⅝ of a point in almost every instance.

DROPS DEAD RUNNING TO GUARD SAVINGS

The exertions Joseph Sousne, proprietor of a shoe shining emporium at No. 64 West Broadway, South Boston, put forth after he had been notified his place of business was afire, caused his death because he had run half the distance that separated him from it. The conflagration, however, brought on by the exertion, was given as the cause. The fire did but little damage and did not touch the place where Sousne's savings were kept.

PRAY FOR RAIN TO END DROUGHT

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The continued drought caused Mr. Vernon residents to suffer more from the lack of water than any other town or city in Westchester County.

It is feared that the city authorities will have to ask permission from New York City to tap the Kensico aqueduct for the purpose of securing an additional supply. In several churches in Westchester County prayers for rain were offered.

WHY ADMIRAL EVANS

$34,752,917 in dividends is the record of thirty-two California Oil Companies. It illustrates the tremendous profits that are being made from California Oil. These profits are largely due to a condition which is new in the history of the oil industry. It is caused by the wholesale introduction of crude oil as fuel. This commodity has taken such a strong position as a generator of heat and power that it constitutes in reality a new industry as compared with the former uses of oil.

California has the most remarkable oil wells in the world. The production has grown at a phenomenal rate. Her wells are producing to-day at the rate of 86,494,640 barrels per year, with a value of about $40,000,000 per year for the product. The oil industry of California represents a profitable investment of over $1,000,000,000. It exceeds in extent, gross production and profits, every other industry of the State, not excepting California's far-famed fruit industry. It exceeds the annual output of gold and silver combined.

California Holds World's Production Record

California has demonstrated its ability to produce oil to such a remarkable extent that all previous records of oil production have been outclassed. The developed area of these prolific fields comes at an opportune time, particularly since there is a decline in the production of oil in other nations. Russia, at one time producing over one-half of the world's petroleum, shows a steady decline in the volume of its output, and is to-day producing barely one-fifth of the world's supply.

Government geological authorities are quoted as estimating the probable proven oil supply of California as 8,500,000,000 barrels. Thus, while the present rate of production is most remarkable in the history of the world, according to the estimate of these conservative authorities, there is practically 100 years' supply at the present rate of production. These estimates are based on the present absolute proven territory and make no allowance for the extension of the fields or the discovery of new fields.

Illustrations of California Oil Profits may be found in the history of the Union and Associated Oil Companies.

The stock of the Associated Oil Company sold less than ten years ago at below $1.00 per share. To-day it is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and is selling at around $44.00 per share. The Associated was organized as a merger of several properties similar to the California Consolidated and under less auspicious circumstances.

The Union Oil Company of California began its existence a few years ago on a valuation of $250,000. Its holdings at the outset in no wise compared with the properties which have been secured for the California Consolidated. To-day the assets of the Union Oil Company have an estimated value of $100,000,000.

The Use of Fuel Oil on Steamships

Oil has practically succeeded the use of other fuels on railroads, steamship lines and factories of the Pacific Coast. Its superiority over coal has extended its use to the Atlantic seaboard and foreign nations. The navies of England, the United States and other progressive nations have so enthusiastically endorsed fuel oil that it is believed to be but a question of limited time until oil stations will be established in all ports of the world, just as coaling stations are to-day.

Naval authorities give the use of oil their unqualified approval. The new war vessels are being equipped with oil burners. It is cleaner than coal. It is more convenient. It requires less storage room. It requires less men-power—it is stated that eight "stokers" on an oil-burning vessel can do the work of thirty-six on a coal burner. It is smokeless. It is cheaper than coal. It is even more safe.

The fastest passenger steamships on the Atlantic seaboard now burn oil. The fastest trans-Atlantic steamers are preparing to introduce it.

Each great industry presents its one epoch of opportunity. It is a period when the industry is past its experimental stages and invites brain, brawn and capital for its expansion. This psychological moment has arrived in the fuel oil industry. It is in the position that coal, steel and copper may have been twenty-five years ago. It cannot reach its zenith within less than ten to twenty years.

Over a Half Million Dollars a Year

The California Consolidated Oil Company has been organized for the purpose of acquiring the highest class of California Oil properties, to build pipe lines, storage reservoirs and refineries to develop properties and to enter into any other branch of operation in the oil industry which may be deemed profitable. The charter of the new corporation is broad, thereby enabling it to extend its scope as may be deemed advisable.

Deals have already been consummated for the acquisition of at least three of the leading individual oil companies of California. Two of these companies are among those included in the dividend figures given at the beginning of this advertisement. The net earnings of these two companies at this time, conservatively estimated on the lowest price for crude oil, is $600,000 per annum. These profits alone represent 10 per cent. on the entire authorized capitalization of the California Consolidated Oil Company at the present price of stock, regardless of future development.

One of these companies has a contract for the delivery of 5,000,000 barrels of oil at a gross price of $2,500,000.

Under thorough development, based on the present output per well, the net profits from these properties now being separately operated by the Premier Oil Company and the Mascot Oil Company should easily be increased to more than $1,600,000 a year. This estimate has been conservatively arrived at by the officers and directors of the California Consolidated Oil Company after a thorough investigation of the books, records and properties of the two companies.

The foregoing figures do not take into consideration the properties of the Yellowstone Oil Company, which consist of 225 acres in the Kern River, Sunset and McKittrick Fields. This acreage is larger than that of either of the companies above referred to, but is not so thoroughly developed.

Associated in the organization of this company are leading oil operators and bankers of California, together with capitalists and authorities on fuel oil throughout the East.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans has accepted the Presidency of the California Consolidated Oil Company, and will personally direct its affairs. Admiral Evans was attracted to this industry because his position as a naval authority had enabled him to fully comprehend the value and possibilities of the fuel oil industry. His conclusions were arrived at from the experience of years in naval operations and as the result of visits to every prominent naval port in the world. The contracts for the properties to be acquired by the California Consolidated Oil Company were closed after a thorough investigation upon the part of Admiral Evans and other officers and directors of the company, who personally negotiated the transaction.

Management of the Corporation

The entire list of officers and directors of this company is composed of men of unquestionable integrity and ability—men who would not allow their names to be used in connection with any enterprise which was in the least of a questionable character. Upon the ability of these gentlemen may be placed absolute reliance.

PRESIDENT.—Rear Admiral ROBLEY D. EVANS, U. S. N., Retired, Washington, D. C.
VICE-PRESIDENT.—ROBERT S. McCREERY, Vice-President of the James McCreery Realty Corporation of New York.
TREASURER.—THEODORE P. GILMAN, New York City. Ex-Comptroller of the State of New York and President of the General Electric Inspection Company of New York; also President of the Flower Waste and Packing Company, New York City.
OTHER DIRECTORS.—HON. MEREDITH P. SNYDER, of Los Angeles, Cal. President of the California Savings Bank. Member of the Los Angeles Clearing House and three times Mayor of Los Angeles, Cal.
HON. JOHN W. MITCHELL, of Los Angeles, Cal. Vice President of the Bank of Southern California, Los Angeles.
FRANK N. FISH, Cashier of the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, San Francisco, Cal.

The California Consolidated Oil Company is incorporated under the strict laws of California. The capitalization is 10,000,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 per share. All of the stock of this new corporation was originally placed in the Treasury. There is no promotion stock, gift stock or preferred stock. It is distinctively a stockholder's corporation in which every one shares alike in the profits of the company.

How the Company Will Be Financed

Instead of following the usual practice of allotting this stock to a few capitalists as underwriters, and paying them for the disposal of same, it has been decided to organize an Underwriters' Syndicate. Readers of this publication are invited to join us by purchasing this stock at the Underwriters' Syndicate price, the proceeds of which will go toward the payment of the properties. This gives each individual the privilege of associating himself with the organizers of the company, thereby securing the advantages usually accorded to underwriters or the founders of a company of this character.

The fact that this method of financing a conservative corporation is unusual will, we believe, make it all the more attractive to the American public. We are sure that the investors of the nation, large and small alike, will be glad of the opportunity to join in the organization of a company of this kind on the underwriter's basis, and will favor the idea of participating in the same at the bottom and not at the top, particularly in a company which has been organized by men of unimpeachable integrity for the protection of stockholders' interests.

The Underwriters' Syndicate price of the capital stock of the California Consolidated Oil Company is 60 cents per share. No order can be accepted for less than 100 shares. The allotment of stock at this price is necessarily limited. The demand for the stock is very great. It is therefore important that orders should be sent immediately.

Where satisfactory evidence of good faith is shown, arrangements can be made for a limited amount of time in which to complete payments. Thorough investigation is invited. Full details will be sent on application. The allotment of stock at the Underwriters' Syndicate price is being rapidly exhausted. We advise immediate action in order to make sure of securing the stock at this low price. Use the coupons below for convenience. Address all communications and make all checks, drafts or money orders payable to

AMERICAN WANT "ADS" BRING QUICK RESULTS

WEZOSOL FREE NOW. FIGHTING FOR HIS LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. John Kundsin of Pratt road in Squantum, who were instrumental in freeing Julius Wezosol, their countryman, through the fight they made against the efforts of the Russian government to extradite him, are now fighting a battle of another kind. They are still fighting for Wezosol, but this time, it is a fight to bring him back to health. For the alleged Russian refugee is now dangerously ill at the Kundsin home, a physical wreck as a result of the trying ordeal he went through during the past six months.

Dr. Stetmen of Roxbury, Wezosol's physician, says the patient is suffering from lung trouble, aggravated by his recent arrest and resulting worries. On Wednesday the Russian, who is hailed by his friends, was stricken with a hemorrhage. Since then Mr. and Mrs. Kundsin have been at his bedside day and night, trying to give him back the health they fear has gone from him forever.

Wezosol's Old Quarters.

The Kundsins live in a small two-room cottage. About 100 feet west of this is a small one-room dwelling, with crevices through which the wind can moon as much as it wants to. It is here that Wezosol is passing his time, for Dr. Stetmen recommended the fresh air as a tonic for him. So he is given plenty of air day and night.

The sick man lay on clean linen, on an iron bed, with his body folded in blankets. His head was turned so that he faced away against two pillows." In his right hand he held a sheet study of yellow pencil. While his left he supported a desk blotter, on this was a sheet of paper on which he was writing. Other sheets lay on the bed.

"You see that the pencil and blotter, pests, and as my readers want editorials, I have to write them, even though I am sick," he said Wezosol. "I am just beginning one hour's freedom.

"It make my living by my editorial work, and I get a regular salary from the Federation of the Socialist-Labor party for my work on Proletarezets. I write it in German. "So I am sure in want. And I would not be anyway, thanks to my kind friends here, Mr. and Mrs. Kundsin, who though not related to me, have spared neither time nor money to secure me my liberty. And I think them out of the bottom of my heart, for I realize how much I owe them."

"America Sweet to Me."

"How did I feel when I set in court and heard my freedom given me? When I came to America it was to the land of the free, where liberty is the most precious possession of every man. I was happy. Then came that speech of the man for the state—the grim gentleman of the state of empire, coming across the ocean like a slave of a beast. I was to be prosecuted, but the guiltless Russian trembles at the idea of trial in Russia, for he knows the ways of the Czar's emissaries, and he sees the danger of a trial in Russia for a Socialist at all.

"Now, your American liberty seems all the sweeter to me. The Czar has found out that even his strong arm cannot reach and seize an innocent man in this land of the free. I never believed that I would be extradited, because I was not guilty. But now that the grim specter has been settled away I can give myself over to entire happiness.

"It is ridiculous of the Russian government to say that it did not prosecute because I was sick. Already I have told how could the Russian government know I was sick? They could not know that I was sick before I was sick, which is foolish. I became ill Wednesday, and on that day against me was only dropped yesterday!

Grateful to Friends.

"My faithful friends have stood by me through thick and thin. I am grateful to them. I thank the Political Refuge Society for its advice to me and its aid. Congratulations have come to me from all sides. Why, in Pittsfield a committee met to arrange a mass meeting, and I was on the program to speak. My country-people have stood with me with one voice.

"The anxiety I suffered, my strenuous endeavors, coupled with the privations of two months in jail, undermined my entire constitution. The jail food was bad. Why, in those two months I lost nearly 30 pounds. They tell me I am a very sick man. But I am going to get well, and then I shall devote myself to my work and then I shall devote myself to my work and then I renewed vigor and vitality.

"Greetings to my country of yours."

DEMOLISHES BOAT, THEN SAVES GIRLS

Sara Barnes, seventeen, of No. 6 Allen street, and Lena Sandler, sixteen, of No. 64 Allen street, West End, were saved from drowning by the occupant of a power boat that had crashed into a pier at which the two girls were enjoying an outing on the Charles River. The pier was demolished. Both girls were thrown into the river, and Sara, the first one to rise, was struck by the motor boat, both men who was driving the motor boat, both would have been drowned had they not risked shout and dragging the girls into the boat he put them ashore, then hurriedly left, without giving his name.

K. C. FLOATS TO BE PARADE FEATURES

The floats in the Columbus Day parade will be one of the picturesque features of the great demonstration to be held in Boston in honor of the great discoverer on Wednesday, October 12.

The chief marshal, Colonel John J. Sullivan of the Ninth Regiment, and his chief of staff, Captain Thomas F. Tennessey, have already assigned planes in the line to the following boats, to be in charge of Grander Boston councils of the Knights of Columbus.

WANTED: ONE UN-MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE

MILFORD, Sept. 26.—Fortunato Testa has taken out his "un-marriage" certificate. Fortunato doesn't propose to have any "Who's honey now?" or other complications in his path of true love. So he sprung a new one on the town clerk.

Going to the town hall, Fortunato said:

"I want a certificate that I'm not married."

"You mean," said the town clerk, "that you are married. But are you married? I thought you were single," said the clerk.

"No," said Fortunato, "I'm not married and I want a paper showing that I'm not. I'm going back to Italy pretty quick and I am goin to get a bride. Who? I don't know yet. But there are lots of pretty girls at home and I'll get one of 'em to marry me and come to America to live. I have steady work and money in the bank. But the girls at home hear so much now about exactly men being married here, deserting their wife and getting married over there. If my future wife asks me if I'm married I don't ask her to believe me. I'll show her a paper that I'm not married." So the town clerk drew up a document, about as follows:

"To whom it may concern—This is to certify that Fortunato Testa of Milford, Massachusetts, U. S. A., is single and free from all matrimonial entanglements, and is not married, engaged, betrothed or bound by any present form, contract or pledge of matrimony or betrothal."

The Value of Poverty to the World

Ask Your Friend What He Would Do if He Had a Million.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Each man will tell you that he is struggling along in uncongenial employment; that if he had his way his life would be arranged very differently.

Put to any friend this question:

"What would you do if you had a million dollars?"

You will learn that, first of all, he would get rid of the useful daily plodding that occupies him. Instead of living to work, he would live to enjoy himself.

If we all had our way we should do as we chose, and there would be no progress. Fortunately, the wisdom of Providence keeps the great majority of men poor and usefully busy.

This writer asked an able business man, who manages the material success of a great newspaper, what he would do if he had a million dollars. He replied without hesitation: "I would go abroad and spend the rest of my life collecting artistic things and enjoying them."

By his newspaper work, which helps to disseminate truth and to fight privilege, this man renders the greatest possible service to the world. He is head of the commissariat department of an army of righteousness. How fortunate that he cannot abandon his useful work to collect artistic trash, that would only make him useless and enrich a few unscrupulous dealers!

Joseph Jefferson as an actor has done great good for the world. He has filled hundreds of thousands of young and old hearts with kindly sympathy. He has set a good example to all the actors of the world. He is truly a public benefactor.

If Joseph Jefferson had had a great fortune he would have spent his life painting pictures, for he believes that he was meant to be a painter.

He was not meant to be a painter; if his life had been devoted to painting it would have been wasted.

How lucky that he was not rich enough to be able to waste his life!

Often the world marvels that the sons of great and successful men accomplish so little.

The world is foolish. It should marvel that the sons of the rich accomplish anything at all.

For genius has truly been called the capacity to take infinite pains. It is the splendid fruit that grows on the tree of HARD WORK.

Infinite pains and hard work are distasteful to human beings. They are avoided by those who can avoid them. It is lucky for the world that the number of those who can shirk is limited.

Dryden tells you in four lines what the actual man would amount to if he had his way:

"My next desire is, void of care and strife,
To lead a soft, secure, inglorious life.

Every man who could afford it would live for himself, to indulge some useless little tenth-rate part of his brain activity.

The world progresses because the wisdom of the universe compels every man to work directly or indirectly for every other man.

If we had our way, if hard necessity did not compel us to do the disagreeable work for which we are fitted, we should all live for ourselves; we should all be mere human sponges, absorbing personal gratification—the progress of the human race would stop.

Let this fact console you when you contemplate with bitterness the few who accumulate great fortunes.

You are a disappointed drop in a great ocean of useful human beings. The interest of the whole ocean demands that you and the vast majority of all other drops should fail to get what you crave—

THE OPPORTUNITY TO BE USELESS.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

APPRECIATED EDITORIALS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I cannot let this day pass without expressing to you the pleasure I had in reading the editorials entitled "We Call This a Country of Equality" and "Dr. Crippen—Why Does Society Seek His Life?" Both are gems for thought, and with many others that have appeared in the BOSTON AMERICAN, ought to awaken the people. But the general public is prone to slumber, and nothing but physical injury will ever take it from the arms of Morpheus. The righteous gospel you now preach will eventually take root, and there will be an uprising. It is a lamentable fact that for the present you will have to content yourself, in addressing the people, with the applause of the minority.

REPENTANCE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I would like to see published in your columns, where it says in the Bible: "There is time for repentance; yea, even at the eleventh hour"; or words to that effect. Thanking you in advance,

G. H.

Medford.

[There is no passage in the Bible as quoted in your letter. Repentance at the eleventh hour is implied in the parable of the laborers (St. Matt. xx., 1-16 verses) where those who were hired at eleventh hour received the same wage as those who had worked all day. It is inferred from this passage that the eleventh hour person is made equal to those who labored all day, and repentance at the eleventh hour may not go amiss—It is better than none at all.—A. E. S.]

BALLOT AND BIRTH RATE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Lady Stout, wife of the Chief Justice of New Zealand, contributed an entirely new point to the discussion of woman suffrage in a recent article published by her in The Englishwoman.

For thirteen years before equal suffrage was granted the birth rate of New Zealand had steadily declined. For a few years after women were given the ballot the decline continued; then it stopped, and for the last ten years the birth rate has been steadily climbing up.

In Victoria also the birth rate had been steadily falling for years. As soon as the ballot was granted to women it began to increase. With the advent of equal suffrage the marriage rate also increased. In Victoria and New Zealand the death rate among babies is the lowest in the world. Lady Stout points these facts with formidable pride, and adds: "One is tempted to attribute the increase in marriage and birth rates and the decrease in infant mortality to 'votes for women.'"

Out of 1,000 babies born in Victoria, 70 die before they are one year old; in New Zealand, 77; in Scotland, 123; in England and Wales, 147; in France, 240; in Germany, 266; in Hungary, 313.

APPROBATION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Please accept my congratulations upon your most able editorials. The one on James Gordon Bennett ought certainly to be reprinted. It was not only powerful, it was a just and severe condemnation of a very inconsistent character.

The editorial entitled "The Pope May Sell His Pictures" is one that certainly ought to be reprinted, and one that should be cut out by every Catholic readers of your paper.

TIME OUR GUIDE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I read the editorials in the BOSTON AMERICAN every day. Sometimes I agree with the writer absolutely. Sometimes I most decidedly disagree, but ALWAYS admire his versatility.

The wonder is that, after all, the result is so small.

The overwhelming majority of the voters to-day follow the fetich of the two great parties and do not know why in response to an intelligent query. Some follow after strange gods and affect the absurdities of Socialism thau which nothing can be more absurd. The immutable law of the survival of the fittest seem to be entirely ignored; but it obtains, as it must, practically and practically automatically.

The BRAINS will actually control the brawn of a nation govern it.

If the Sermon on the Mount was absolutely operative the world would go back to darkness and old night, as strange as it would appear at first thought, but think it over.

As long as one human wants the best the world produces in food, apparel, shelter and every form of creative comfort, so long will he have it; always bearing in mind that he must dodge the grand jury.

You cannot legislate people to be kind, generous, self-sacrificing, self-effacing, considerate or charitable.

Education has brought us where we are, but what is to direct and guide us to better things? My answer is TIME. What is yours?

You Can't Fool All the People All the Time, Senator Lodge

Has he come to the conclusion that they are harmful to the Republican party?

The platform of the last national Republican convention contained a solemn pledge that the Republican party, through its majority in Congress, would revise the tariff downward in behalf of the people and relieve the burdensome living conditions.

That tariff plank was a solemn promise to do something that would afford relief for the masses.

The Republican battle-cry of the presidential campaign two years ago was the tariff would be revised by the Republican party in such a way that the high cost of living would be materially cut down.

As it turned out, the Republican Congress revised the tariff for the benefit of the trusts and the special interests.

As a result of the Republican party's failure to keep faith with the people, the stand-pat element of that party and the bosses of that party have been meeting with defeat in State after State.

The Progressives of the Republican party, who are coming into power in many States, have won the favor of the people because they have promised definite reforms and have solemnly promised to keep their promises.

The momentous and overwhelming Democratic victory in Maine was the result of the failure of the Republican party to keep its faith with the people, which brought about a widespread desire on the part of the people to give the Democrats an opportunity to put in effect the promises of reform which they made.

No wonder Senator Lodge is of the opinion that candidates who make promises should be avoided! But it is inconceivable that a man of his intelligence and political acumen should continue to preach the hated stand-pat doctrine.

> "The candidate representing any party who makes promises before election should be avoided, as I am of the opinion that it is a false move. The man who makes no promises is the one who should get the support of the people."

There you have the real essence of stand-pattism.

There you have the expressed wish of the Republican bosses.

There you have the heart's desire of political reactionaries, the forces that are opposed to progress and to the largest measure of popular government.

The day is passing, Senator Lodge, of the political dummy. More and more the people are demanding to know what candidates stand for, as well as what parties stand for.

In other words, the voters want to know how candidates for public office interpret the policies and principles of their party and want to know their own individual code of political honor.

In the opinion of this Republican boss it is enough for the people to know that a man is a candidate of the Republican party. They should ask no questions and mechanically vote for party tags, if they would please Senator Lodge or follow his advice.

If it is a bad thing for a candidate to make a promise, why is it not a bad thing for a party to make a promise?

If Senator Lodge is right, why would it not be a logical thing to do away entirely with platforms, nominate for public office men who stand for no principles; who outline no conception of public duty; who pledge themselves to no reforms; who, to sum it all up, tell the voters it is none of their business what they stand for or what they intend to advocate and work for.

It is the duty and the right of every voter to acquaint himself with the qualifications and the purposes of candidates for office.

The best way to do that is to secure public declarations from them, setting forth their ideas on political questions and making oath to do their whole duty toward the whole people.

It is not surprising to find that eminent exponent of the "do-nothing policy," Stephen O'Meara, Police Commissioner and would-be Republican machine candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, in accord with Senator Lodge on this question of the duty of the candidate; and it is merely significant of the quality of his own candidacy that he should make known his "objection of principle to pre-election pledges."

"Take us on faith. We are willing to give you our opinions. Don't ask us to pledge ourselves to perform any specific act or favor any specific policy. We are willing to make known our intentions, but we reserve the right to change our minds after election. Believe us. Our intentions are good."

All of which suggests the thought that there probably will not be a shortage of material for the highway department of that future state, which, it is popularly supposed, is paved with good intentions.

Prof. Frank Parsons

A MEMORY AND A REALITY

By MEYER BLOOMFIELD

TWO years have passed since that great teacher of the people, Professor Frank Parsons, closed his life of service and inspiration. His influence has not ceased nor has it waned.

In the gratitude of thousands whom he has quickened to large achievements his lives. Throughout this land are the students and the workers who lighted their torches at the glowing flame of Frank Parsons's soul and they are following the way of constructive and democratic service. This is what Professor Parsons lived for—money, possession never interested him except as means to an end—to awaken in youth a purpose to serve others and to love ideals.

Professor Parsons was a teacher of the Socratic kind—he grew out of his pupils instead of pouring into them. His methods of unfolding seeds and stimulating to debate he was formidable. When he began to preach what now is called the "new nationalism" he was a voice in the wilderness. To-day his writings seem to have been those of a prophet. Not only were his books ahead of his generation, but his work in education, too, had a rare pioneer quality.

Next Sunday evening a group of young men and women at the Civic Service House on Salem street will hold exercises in memory of Professor Parsons. It was at this neighborhood centre in the North End where perhaps the most far-reaching of all Professor Parsons's endeavors took shape. After conducting for a year some of the classes in that department of the Salem street house, called the Breadwinners Institute, the idea came to Professor Parsons in conference with the other workers that careful counselling as to future life work was much needed. Thereupon an office was opened at the Civic Service House, and later at the Boston Young Men's Christian Association and the Women's Educational and Industrial Union for advising young and old, but particularly the young, as to what was required for efficiency and happiness in the chosen life work.

The Vocation Bureau, begun so humbly, has developed into a rapidly growing national movement for vocational guidance. Next November the first national congress ever called together on this subject of helping youth choose its appropriate life work will be held in Boston. The powerful Boston Chamber of Commerce is inviting every other Chamber in the country to send delegates to this congress. Such is the recognition by intelligent business men of the Vocation Bureau idea. This Bureau has now grown into a large co-operating office, working with the Boston School system and other agencies, and is located in an office building on Tremont street.

Organized labor in the United States will not soon forget the services of Professor Parsons. He was their teacher and economic interpreter. No one better understood their cause and no one gave voice to its significance in clearer and more convincing form.

The cause of progress found in Professor Parsons a most valiant, sincere and able exponent. His was a fine life—one of real success—for wherever he went, wherever he spoke or taught, he voiced the innermost sentiments of the people and they made return of him in love and reverence.
